Anti-Truman Democrats See Senate Recaptured

Two Senators Say They'll Campaign For Candidates For Upper House

By The Associated Press

Two Southern Senators who fought the nomination of President Truman said yesterday they expect Democrats to regain control of the Senate in the November election.

Senators Sparkman (D., Ala.) and Olin D. Johnston (D., S. C.) told a reporter in separate interviews that despite their opposition to Mr. Truman they feel free to go out and campaign for Democratic senatorial candidates.

"I think our chances are excellent to recapture control of the Senate this fall," Senator Sparkman said. "I'll feel free to campaign for any Democratic nominee for the Senate or House."

Republicans now hold 51 Senate seats and Democrats 45 so that a switch of four could give the Democrats a narrow control and chairmanships of all the committees as well as leadership.

Hopeful in Tennessee

Republicans have been saying they will make heavy gains in the House and will also gain in the Senate. Yesterday GOP party chiefs said chances were good for them to pick up a Senate seat from Tennessee.

Senator Johnston summed up for the Democrats:

"It looks mighty good. Our chances are excellent to take Republican seats in Kentucky, Oklahoma, West Virginia and Wyoming. We also have an even break in Minnesota, Illinois and Delaware."

A third Democrat, who is supporting Mr. Truman, Senator Elmer Thomas (Okla.), agreed his party has a chance to upset the present GOP control of the Senate.

Depends on Trend

"But it depends largely on how big a Republican trend there is," Thomas said. "If Governor Dewey sweeps Oklahoma and other border and northern States, he probably will carry the Republican Senate places with him."

Sparkman, who is seeking reelection in Alabama, is pledged to support Gov. J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina for the presidency, along with other States Rights Democrats.

Johnston has made no announcement about supporting either Governor Thurmond, the Dixiecrat presidential candidate from his home State, or Mr. Truman since their nominations. But he was one of the most active anti-Truman leaders prior to the Philadelphia national nominating convention.

Simple Trick Ends Hiccups After 21 Months

Pasadena, Calif., Aug. 22 (AP).—Theodore L. Syvertson, 69, is cured of his hiccups because of a simple parlor trick.

The retired building contractor has been hiccuping more or less continuously since he suffered a severe cold in November, 1946.

He tried all the stock remedies, spent eight or nine months in hospitals and consulted about 60 doctors. Even the shock of breaking his hip didn't help.

Joseph Wollert, Los Angeles, rapped on his door late last night and insisted Syvertson try his remedy.

It consisted of bending at the waist and drinking water from the far side of a glass.

Halfway through the second glass Syvertson straightened up and said:

"Fella: That seems to be the ticket."

He hasn't hiccuped since.

8th In Nation

Per Capita Pay Here Up $78 in Year

Washingtonians made $78 per capita more in 1947 than they did in 1946, but they slipped from fourth to an eighth place tie with Illinois on high per capita earnings on a national basis.

Figures released yesterday by the Commerce Department show an average per capita income of $1624 in Washington last year, as compared with $1546 in 1946. Last year's average per capita income was 123 per cent of the national average, which was $1323.

Nevada's citizens were, on the average, the richest in the Nation, with a per captita income of $1842. Lowest average was Mississippi's $659.

At the top of the scale, behind Nevada, and ahead of District citizens, were New York, $1781; North Dakota, $1678; Connecticut, $1671;

Truman Goes To Church At Annapolis

Worships With Plebes, Meets Midshipman John Paul Jones

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 22 (AP).—President Truman worshipped with the plebes at the Naval Academy today and got acquainted with Midshipman John Paul Jones.

"I hope you live up to your name," the President told the tall, fair-haired plebe from Piqua, Ohio, as they shook hands. "I'm sure you will." Jones told reporters he is not a descendant of the Revolutionary War sea fighter.

Young Jones led his classmates into the huge Academy chapel by virtue of being regimental commander for the week. The Academy band played "Onward Christian Soldiers."

The Chief Executive left his presidential yacht, the USS Williamsburg, anchored off Phlox Landing, to come ashore in a small launch for his unheralded visit.

At his request, there was no 21-gun salute, or any of the usual honors attending a presidential arrival. A bugler appeared at the landing, but didn't get in a note.

If the President's visit was unheralded, it was not a surprise.

Air Crash Kills Four Leaders In Oregon GOP

Klamath Falls, Oreg., Aug. 22 (AP).—Four prominent Oregon Republican party leaders and State legislators were killed late today when a plane crashed into the Lake of the Woods in northern Klamath County.

State Representative Frank van Dyke of Jackson County reported from the resort area the plane was piloted by William Henry Fluhrer of Medford.

State legislators John Snellstrom of Lane County, Earle Johnson of Benton County and H. H. Evans, GOP House nominee of Lincoln County were passengers.

Mother 'Has New Hope'

'Operate,' Doctors' Panel Tells Parents of Malformed Baby

Chicago, Aug. 22 (AP).—A panel of medical experts today voted a chance for life to Pamela Frances Lamphere, 22 months old.

The child has been the center of a court fight between her parents as to whether surgery should be performed to correct a deformity with which the baby was born. The little girl's bladder is outside of her abdomen. The panel agreed today on an operation.

Physicians said that Pamela would not live until her fifth birthday if the condition were not corrected.

Fred Lamphere, 23, a shipping clerk, filed suit as Pamela's father to force the mother, Irene, 21, to consent to the operation.

Mrs. Lamphere has a divorce suit pending against her husband as the result of disagreement over what should be done about the child. She has charged cruelty.

A week ago, Mrs. Lamphere told Judge O'Malley she would not consent to the operation because, "I want her as long as I can have her. I'd lose her forever if she were operated upon."

Today, she said "I have new hope."

After Dr. Karl Meyer, spokesman for the medical panel of six, announced its decision, Mrs. Lamphere said she had accepted it and would cooperate. Dr. Meyer stated the operation should be performed within the next two months.

Dr. Meyer, chief of the Cook County Hospital staff, said chances of a successfu. operation were about 90 per cent.

Dr. Meyer said the experts' report would be submitted this week to Superior Judge Walter R. O'Malley who ordered the examination. He said arrangements for the operation would be made in a consultation between the parents and Judge O'Malley.

The parents appeared separately at the hospital, Mrs. Lamphere bringing the blonde, blue-eyed

Parley Sees Christianity As Best Hope

First International Church Assembly, At Amsterdam, Hears 2 Americans

Amsterdam, Aug. 22 (AP).—Christianity was offered as the world's only salvation from unrest at the opening session of the first International Assembly of the World Council of Churches today.

Attending the assembly are some 1500 delegates and other officials representing 150 Protestant and orthodox churches in 42 nations. The assembly, meeting at the Cathedral of Holland, will continue through September 4.

The Roman Catholic Church elected not to send any delegation on the ground that direct representation would be incompatible with tenets of the Vatican, but it has nominated observers.

A pastoral letter addressed to Dutch Catholics said the unity Christ wanted could be found only in the Roman Catholic Church. The letter urged Catholics to pray for the council conferees and their communicants who, "longing for unity and though separated from the flock of Christ, are looking up—perhaps often unconsciously—to the church as the only harbor."

Secular Writers Seeing Light

Dr. John A. Mackay, president of Princeton Theological Seminary, Princeton, N. J., said secular as well as religious writers have begun to see in Christianity "the one hope for mankind."

"When the world craves to know the meaning of salvation," he said, "and when millions have been disillusioned by devotion to false saviors, it is the time of all times for the Christian Church, by word and by deed, to interpret to passionate and despairing people that there is a redeemer who can give true life to men and established righteousness and judgment in the earth. . . .

"There are powers, both secular and religious, in the world of today which confine the Christian Church, or certain branches of the church, to the exercise of strictly localized worship. By doing so, they raise afresh the crucial issue of the meaning and right of religious freedom.

Dr. Mott Is Speaker

"The International Missionary Council has maintained, and I trust that the World Council of Churches will also maintain, that missionary activity is both a native right of all Christians and a permanent obligation of the whole Christian Church."

Dr. John R. Mott of New York and Orlando, Fla., president emeritus of the world Y.M.C.A. and one of the five presidents of the World Council of Churches, said the assembly was convened "at one of the most fateful moments in the life of the world."

It is fateful, he said, "because of the unexampled sufferings" in recent years throughout the world "that still haunt us." He spoke of the "price which has been paid in

33 States Had A Warmer Sunday Than Washington

Hot in Washington? Not compared to many of the States in the Union.

The Weather Bureau said Sunday's maximum temperature in Washington was 80 degrees, but 9 of the 48 States had temperatures of 100 or better, and 24 others had temperatures between 90 and 100

Most of the too-warm States were in the Central Plains area, with Wichita Falls, Tex., leading with 105 degrees.

Sunday was the twenty-second consecutive day when the temperature in the District hadn't risen above 85 degrees—record for the District in early August. And today—it'll be about 85.

Wife of Hiss Questioned In Secret

Comment Declined By Red Prober, But Group Won't Call More Spouses

By The Associated Press

The House Un-American Activities Committee has secretly questioned Mrs. Alger Hiss and decided against using wives to try to nail down a story of a prewar Red underground.

"We've heard Mrs. Hiss," Representative Nixon (R., Calif.) told reporters. "On that, no comment whatever."

Mrs. Hiss is the wife of a key figure in the committee's investigation of tales about operations of a Communist underground in Washington before the war and of stories about spy rings during the war.

Hiss, a former official in the State Department, now president of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, has been accused of belonging to the underground and the Communist Party. He denied it under oath.

Testimony on Hiss

His accuser is Whittaker Chambers, now an editor of Time magazine. Chambers has sworn that he himself:

Was a Red from 1924 to 1937, was a courier for the underground, knew Hiss as one of its members, soured on communism, and tried unsuccessfully to get Hiss to break with the underground.

With the questioning of Mrs. Hiss, the committee now has gone down the list of people on whom Chambers put the finger—with one exception. It still wants to bring in J. V. Peters, named by Chambers as head of the underground for the whole United States, and the man who introduced him to Hiss.

Chambers has said he regarded Mrs. Hiss as a Communist, too, and says she was present during discussions of her husband's alleged Red affiliation.

Nixon told reporters:

"No plans have been made for bringing the wives of either one (Hiss or Chambers) into the hearings."

Parallel Stories

For one thing, the committee feels sure their stories would parallel those of their husbands. And in that testimony there still are wide gaps and variations.

Trying to fill in some of the chinks, the committee plans to slap subpenas on three or four unsuspecting witnesses in the next couple of days. They are to be questioned in private, and then in a public hearing Wednesday, at which Chambers and Hiss are billed to confront each other.

Nixon didn't give out their names. But he said most of them have known Hiss, Chambers, or both.

Senator Hatch (D., N. Mex.) complained, meanwhile, that a congressional investigation of "minnows" has permitted the "big fish" of the Communist spy pool to get away.

Hatch told a reporter before he left Washington on a vacation he thinks House and Senate inquiries into Communists in the Government "have done the country a great disservice."

"They have merely brought out into the open the minnows, whose activities are only good for the headlines," he said. "These investigations have seriously hampered the efforts of the FBI and the Jus-

3 Reds Leave, Consul Drops From Sight

Trio Loaded Down With Luggage as They Leave New York

New York, Aug. 22 (AP).—Three Russian diplomatic representatives left Idlewild Airport aboard a Scandinavian airliner today for their native Russia.

The men, loaded down with luggage, said they were making a routine trip home to the Soviet Union. It was not known whether they planned to return.

The men were identified as Ivan Tyatenko and Nicolai Toleraiya of the Russian Embassy in Ottawa and Vladimar Anoutriev, an assistant naval attache in Washington.

Meanwhile, Soviet Consul General Jacob M. Lomakin, who is scheduled to make the long trip home himself next Saturday, was in seclusion in Rye, N. Y., with his wife and two children.

Vice Consul Zot. I. Cherpurnykh would make no comment today on anything concerning Lomakin or the refugee Russian schoolteachers. He spent the day behind the locked doors of the consulate.

Mrs. Oksana Stepanova Kasenkina, the principal cause for Lomakin's recall to Russia, was said to be "holding her own today." Roosevelt Hospital authorities said she had asked for no visitors today and had had none. Since she was removed from the critical list yesterday the hospital has ceased issuing bulletins on her condition.

Lomakin Whereabouts Unknown to Officials

New York, Aug. 22 (U.P.).—The whereabouts of Jacob M. Lomakin, Soviet Consul General in New York, who has been ordered by the United States Government to leave the country, was a mystery tonight.

Vice Consul Zot I. Chepurnykh said yesterday that Lomakin had gone to the house he rented for the summer in Rye, N. Y., but Lomakin's neighbors said today they hadn't seen anyone in the house all weekend.

Other reports said Lomakin was at the Russian estate in fashionable Glen Cove, Long Island, but no one there could be reached for verification. An official at the consulate said only that both Lomakin and Chepurnykh were away but would be back Monday morning.

Supporters Of Cominform Purged by Tito

50 Secret Police Among Hundreds Arrested in 10 Days

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Aug. 22 (U.P.).—Hundreds of Yugoslavs, including 50 members of the secret police, have been arrested in a 10-day purge of persons suspected of supporting the Cominform against Premier Marshal Tito, it was reliably reported tonight.

The nine-nation Communist Information Bureau has repeatedly assailed Tito as "an enemy of international communism." Yugoslav Communists have declared their loyalty to Tito, while at the same time emphasizing their faithful support of Soviet Premier Josef Stalin and Russian communism.

The current purge began after the arrest August 4 of four members of the traditionally pro-Russian government of Montenegro Province, including Montenegrin Vice Premier Bozo Yumovitch.

Editor's Arrest Reported

Also reportedly arrested were Labud Kussovac, former Yugoslav press officer at the United Nations and foreign editor of the official Tanjug News Agency, and Blazo Rajchevitch, Montenegrin doctor of law and prewar Communist leader.

The arrested secret policemen represented only a small part of the force, believed to number 3000 in all.

The purge had apparently not affected Montenegrin Premier Blazo Yovanovitch, brother of the former Yugoslav chief of staff who was shot Wednesday while trying to flee into Romania. Yovanovitch has the reputation of being a strong supporter of Tito.

The Montenegrin premier's brother, Gen. Arso Yovanovitch, was reportedly seeking to get out of the country to join a strong anti-Tito organization abroad.

Reliable sources said that two other generals left here in separate planes for unknown destina-

Truman Cabinet Has Turned Over Nearly 3 Times

By the United Press

President Truman's Cabinet has turned over almost three times in three years and now bears little resemblance to the one he inherited.

With the induction last week of Maurice J. Tobin as Secretary of Labor, 26 persons have served in the Cabinet since Mr. Truman took office on April 12, 1945. That beats by one the score of the late President Roosevelt, though Mr. Roosevelt served 12 years, but it isn't a record. Teddy Roosevelt is high with 29.

Emphasis Off Employers

Taft-Hartley Act One Year Old; Unions Chief NLRB Concern

By The Associated Press

The standout fact on yesterday's first birthday of the Taft-Hartley Act is that the National Labor Relations Board has begun issuing orders against unions.

For a dozen years the Board has been issuing orders against employers and that process continues. For example the Board recently ruled that companies must bargain in good faith with unions over pensions and insurance plans.

But the prosecution of unions for unfair labor practices gets the main attention these days because the whole field is new and uncharted. Organized labor is campaigning for defeat of the law's backers.

The Federal courts began issuing Taft-Hartley orders long before the NLRB did. In the last 12 months the courts have handed down 14 injunctions of various sorts against unions, one against an employer, and four "80-day" national emergency orders for cooling-off periods.

All those injunctions were temporary stopgap measures. They were not supposed to be verdicts on the merits of any case.

Such verdicts are made by the five-man Labor Board (Paul M. Herzog, John M. Houston, James J. Reynolds, jr., Abe Murdock and J. Copeland Gray), although they can be appealed to the courts for review.

How does an unfair labor practice case reach the Board for decision?

1. First, somebody files a charge. A summary of NLRB monthly summaries shows that in the first 10 Taft-Hartley months, August 22, 1947, to July 1, 1948, there were 2528 charges filed against employers and 739 against unions.

2. Then the office of Robert N. Denham, the independent general counsel of the NLRB, investigates and decides whether to issue a complaint. Until July 1, they are said to have issued 146 complaints against employers, 37 against unions, and three against both.

(Most of the complaints against employers were in cases that had been filed before the Taft-Hartley Act went into effect.)

3. On issuing a complaint the Denham office prosecutes the case before an NLRB trial examiner, who makes recommendations to the Board. In the first 12 months, trial examiners have made reports in 119 cases, 50 of which originated after the new law went into effect.

Then the board considers the report and makes a decision. In the first Taft-Hartley year, the board decided nearly 200 unfair practice cases. But only four of these originated after the law went into effect, and only three have been against unions.

Of those three, one was a finding

Final Meeting With Molotov Likely Today

4-Power Decisions Expected; Western Envoys Hold Session

Moscow, Aug. 22 (AP).—Western envoys negotiating with Russia on the German situation conferred again here today and awaited a call to see Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov, but the call failed to materialize.

French Ambassador Yves Chataigneau and British Special Emissary Frank Roberts met for 1 hour and 45 minutes with United States Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith at his residence. The envoys stood by until they had definite news there would be no four-power meeting today.

[The New York Herald Tribune said the outcome of the talks probably would be decided at a conference with Molotov Monday.]

This is the longest interval between the four-nation sessions since the talks got under way. The last talk with Molotov took place August 16. Previously the conferences were three or four days apart.

Hundreds Protest

Senate Probes Kaiser-Frazer Lease of U. S. Blast Furnace

A public hearing to investigate the deal to lease a big United States-owned blast furnace to the Kaiser-Frazer Corp. was called last night by the Senate Small Business Committee for Wednesday morning.

The committee said it had received "hundreds of telegrams and telephone calls from Chambers of Commerce, trade associations and individual foundries who fear a cut-off of pig iron supplies as a result of the transfer of the plant to Kaiser-Frazer."

In Cleveland, Ohio, where the plant is located, Raymond L. Collier, executive vice president of the Gray Iron Founders' Society, said the shift from operation by Republic Steel Corp., which has been running the plant, "could precipitate a major industrial slump throughout the East and Middle West."

Committee Chairman Wherry (R., Nebr.) said witnesses who have been asked to "furnish the full facts" are C. W. White, president, and W. W. Hancock, vice president of Republic Steel; Jesse Larsen, administrator of the War Assets Administration which made the contract with Kaiser-Frazer, and Henry Kaiser and Edgar Kaiser of the K-F concern.

Others asked to appear include Preston Tucker, motor manufacturer of Chicago, who also bid for the plant; Collier of the Founders' organization, and Charles C. Fichtner, executive vice president of the Buffalo, N. Y., Chamber of Commerce.

The plant "has historically served pig iron to customers in New York State and throughout New England," the committee said.

"Republic notified these customers earlier in the month that it would not be able to deliver commitments of pig iron after August 31."

K-F is to take over on September 1.

Berlin Reds Kidnap U. S. Official at Zone Border

Information Officer Shoved Into Russian Jeep Before Eyes Of Wife, Children

Berlin, Aug. 22 (U.P.).—Three armed Russian soldiers today kidnaped an American official from the Berlin square, which has become the front line of the "cold war." United States authorities who sought his release were unable to obtain a satisfactory Soviet answer.

The Russians seized Thomas Headen of New York City in Potsdamer Platz, and rushed him away in a jeep despite the screams of his wife and young children.

[The Associated Press said American authorities expected the Russians would release Headen "some time Monday."]

Headen was the first American seized in the recent Berlin "border incidents." Eleven German policemen were kidnaped Friday and Saturday from western territory, and eight are still being held despite official American and British protests.

Accidentally Crossed Line

The incident occurred at the mouth of Potsdamer st., where the British and Soviet sectors of the city meet, at 4:05 p. m. (10:05 a. m. EDT). Headen had accidentally stepped across the boundary line into Russian territory while taking pictures.

[The New York Herald Tribune said the Soviet seizure of Headen amounted to a kidnaping in broad daylight. It was not an orthodox arrest since they simply hauled him into a jeep. They did not even bother to ask for identification papers and there were no charges against him. Headen was completely within his legal rights in entering the Soviet sector as all four sectors are open to traffic by all four powers.]

Two other Americans are in Russian hands—First Lieut. Sherman F. Turner, jr., of Council Bluffs, Iowa, and Roland M. Meyers of Brooklyn, N. Y., a civilian employe of the Army Department.

Turner and Meyers were arrested August 5 on the United States-Soviet zone border in northern Bavaria. They had accidentally crossed the border while inspecting farm property. Soviet authorities have promised to release them, "by way of Berlin," but no date has been set.

Soviet Police Official Held

German police today arrested Frank Erdmann, director of the Soviet sector criminal police, while he was attending a boxing match in the British sector. British sources said that Erdmann was the officer in charge of the jail where the kidnaped west-sector police are being held.

The Headen kidnaping occurred despite heavy British and American military police precautions which have transformed

Greeks Act Fast To Follow Victory In Grammos Area

Athens, Aug. 22 (AP).—Greek army forces are engaging Communist guerillas in battle in the Vitsi area in a quick move to follow up the victory in the Grammos mountains, a communique said today.

A spokesman said the Vitsi area is only 10 to 15 square miles and contains no natural defenses such as the Grammos mountains. He estimated at least 1500 guerillas are in the sector.

The general staff spokesman said the government army had broken the resistance in the last Grammos pocket and now is counting casualties to determine the success of a two-month campaign.

Unofficial reports said 1000 dead were counted in the last three days.

Politically Markos Vafiades, the guerilla leader, needs the recapture of a section of Greece for his Communist "free Greece." There are still many guerilla bands in the country, but they now hold no particular area.

The Markos radio described the Communist defeat as a "withdrawal according to plan."

Pravda Raps U. S. Treatment of Reds

Moscow, Aug. 22 (AP).—Pravda declared today the United States State Department is encouraging "unprecedented provocations" against Soviet citizens in the United States to "cover up the failure of foreign policy."

The official organ of the Russian Communist Party said, in an article by commentator M. Marinin, that "the strategists of the 'cold war' truly are in a fury."

The article raged at "white guards" and "gangster actions of American police." But no mention was made in Pravda or other Moscow papers of the State Department note demanding the recall of Consul General Jacob Lomakin. (The note charged Soviet officials with improper conduct in the New York case of the Russian school teachers, Mrs. Oksana Kasenkina and Mikhail Samarin.)

The Pravda article not only repeated those charges to which the State Department objected in its note but this time specifically named the State Department itself in charging ties between "Russian emigre white guard terrorist" organizations and United States Government organs.

"Matters have reached the point where the gangster actions of the American police, which do not shrink from direct violation of the legal rights and privileges of the Soviet consular representatives in New York, are encouraged and protected by the United States State Department," Pravda said.

Commenting on another point of conflict between the United States and Russia, Pravda said the refusal of Britain, France and the United States to sign the new Danube pact "would not in the slightest degree have any influence on the coming into force of the convention."

First Action

Conference On European Union Called

Paris, Aug. 22 (U.P.).—First steps toward creation of a United States of Europe may be taken at a five-nation preparatory conference at Brussels, probably in November.

The French government, through diplomatic channels, has invited Britain, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg to send parliamentary delegations.

If the four governments accept, the conference will make plans for calling a European assembly.

Although it would have only advisory powers at first, the assembly would be the nucleus for European unity, which has been the dream of statesmen from Charlemagne to Winston Churchill.

French and British parliaments each have been asked to send 25 delegates, Belgium and Holland 11 each, and Luxembourg 3.

The 75 delegates would make recommendations as to date, place, agenda and rules of procedure for the first European assembly, as well as the all-important question of what nations are to be invited.

Sponsors believe that at first only the countries now taking part in the Marshall Plan would be included, plus the three western zones of Germany, and the free territory of Trieste.

Until such time as European countries are willing to give up part of their sovereignty to a federal organization, the proposed assembly could have no legislative or executive powers, but could give expression to the desire of European peoples for unity and peace; consider practical measures to attain political and economic integration of Europe; study constitutional, economic and social problems which must be overcome to create a European union, and develop cultural relations to give Europeans an understanding of the common principles of their civilization.

On a less abstract plane, the assembly could also approve a charter of human rights, plan for the establishment of a European supreme court and make recommendations for action by existing intergovernmental agencies.

London Paper Reports Yugoslav Army Purge

London, Aug. 22 (U.P.).—The Sunday Observer reported from Belgrade today that Ozna, the Yugoslav secret police, is conducting a purge of the Yugoslav army.

The dispatch said it was understood that "hundreds" of persons have been arrested. It said Yugoslav Interior Ministry authorities had been "surpised" by the number of persons found to sympathize with the Communist Information Bureau, which recently denounced Marshal Tito and expelled Yugoslavia from the organization.

The Observer said competent observers believe the differences between Moscow and Belgrade were not on questions of Marxist doctrine, but on the style of the Yugoslav army and the role it would play in the event of an east-west conflict.

have given rise to rumors here that there is disagreement among the three powers themselves. If there is such a disagreement, the most likely issue at stake is the question of dual Berlin currency. It is known that the British did not see eye to eye with Americans on this subject in earlier talks.

(The Russian-controlled Berlin newspaper National Zeitung declared again Sunday, for the third time in four days, that the four powers had decided only Soviet-sponsored marks should be used in Berlin and that the western mark should be withdrawn. A Berlin Communist organ, Neues Deutschland, printed what it called "London reports" that western currency would be removed from the city. There was no confirmation for either declaration.)

Observers here were inclined to ascribe the delay to the fact that it is Sunday and Soviet officials now rarely use the Sabbath for meetings or business.

Potsdamer Platz virtually into an armed camp. The Russians seized him and beat a retreat so quickly that near-by British MPs had no opporunity to act.

[The Berlin correspondent of the New York Herald Tribune reported that American military police patrols were pulled back from border points and ordered to positions several blocks away to avoid possibility of an incident arising from Soviets and Americans facing each other directly across borders. The patrols still were within comparatively close hailing distance in the event of further Soviet soldier raids into western sectors.]

American Military Government officials immediately called the Russian kommandatura to demand Headen's release. Russian officials said they had no information about the kidnapping, but that they would investigate. The Russians said "Call back in 20 minutes."

In 20 minutes, the Americans called again. The Soviets again pleaded ignorance, and said they would call back in 30 minutes.

At the end of that time, no call had been received.

"This game probably will go on for some time," an American officer commented.

Headen, deputy director of the American information control office, was strolling in Potsdamer Platz with his wife, their 10-year-old daughter, Judith and their five-year-old son, Peter. Lieut. Don Staab of Pittsfield, N. H., and Richmond Hill, N. Y., was standing nearby.

British military police said Headen was snapping pictures of the emergency preparations in the big square when a Russian jeep suddenly dashed up to the sector boundary. Three Russians, all armed, were in the vehicle.

One of the Soviet soldiers jumped out and grabbed Headen. Aided by his two companions, he pulled the American into the jeep and it dashed away into the Soviet sector.

As Headen was dragged into the jeep his wife ran forward, screaming: "That's my husband! That's my husband they're taking away in that jeep!" The Russians paid no attention.

Staab said at first that "we were standing 10 yards or more inside the British sector" at the time of the kidnaping, but later, after conferring with British M. P.'s he changed his mind.

"I guess we all had stepped across the boundary without knowing it," he told reporters. "The line runs across the street at a sharp angle. Someone said something about the Russians and I stepped back a few paces.

"I saw the Russians giving Mrs. Headen, the children and myself the once-over," he added.

After waiting for an hour and a half at the police station, Mrs. Headen returned to her home in Berlin's fashionable Dahlem district.

"I don't know whether to sit or stand or cry or what," she said at her home tonight. "The policemen told me . . . that the Russians won't do anything (about Headen's release) until they come back to work Monday morning."

This was the first of the recent kidnappings about which there had been any doubt. The German policemen had all been kidnapped from points well within the western zones, some of them being dragged more than 100 yards before their captors got them into Soviet territory.

The sector boundaries in Potsdamer Platz—where the British, Russian and American sectors all converge—were clearly marked off by the three powers yesterday.

The official Soviet army newspaper Taegliche Rundschau hinted today that further attacks on west-sector German police could be expected. A Rundschau editorial attacked western police officers as "Fascist criminals" and said they are "a great danger to the life of all Berliners."

The Anglo-American "aerial railway" brought 4410 tons of food and supplies into Berlin during the day in 665 flights. A total of 1736 tons of coal were brought in.

Heavy British and American P. P. patrols were alerted through the day for signs of renewed Russian-German black market raids of the type which caused the police kidnappings and the incident Thursday night when Soviet-sector police fired across the sector boundary into a German crowd in the British sector.

American Public Safety Director Ray Ashworth said that M. P. patrols would remain on 24-hour day duty in Potsdamer Platz "as long as necessary to protect our sector."

Maj. M. Rigdon, deputy United States provost marshal, said that the military police have orders to keep German crowds from gathering, "since it seems the Russians object mainly to crowds."

Some black marketers were doing business in the square today.

The British-licensed newspaper Der Tag reported today that Soviet sector police had cordoned off the headquarters of the anti-Communist Christian Democratic Party, apparently indicating that a purge of the remaining opposition parties in the Soviet zone may be impending.

The newspaper said that action had been ordered by Paul Markgraf, Soviet sector police chief.

ARRESTED BY BRITISH—Franz Erdmann, chief of the Soviet-controlled criminal police of Berlin, who was arrested by British sector police in Berlin's Olympic Stadium yesterday

Headen a Missourian And Former Reporter

New York, Aug. 22 (AP).—Thomas P. Headen, deputy chief of the American military information control division who was arrested by Soviet soldiers today, was a reporter for the New York Sun for about 10 years before he entered the Army in 1943.

He is a native of Kansas City, Mo., and a graduate of the University of Missouri.

After working for a while on the Kansas City Star he came to New York and joined the Sun staff in the early 1930s. There, Headen did general reporting and rewrite work.

Headen entered the Army as a commissioned officer assigned to the Allied Civil Affairs Command. He attended the American Military Government School at the University of Virginia and was sent overseas in 1944.

Headen has criticized the Russians for suppressing freedom of expression in their zone of Germany by police methods. He said in a broadcast last February that they "have the same fear of truth and criticism which was displayed by the Nazi dictatorship."

British Planes Export Goods From Berlin

Berlin, Aug. 22 (AP).—The British announced tonight 12,300,000 deutsche marks' worth of goods have been exported from Berlin by British planes since the Soviet blockade on the city began two months ago.

(The deutsche mark is figured unofficially at 30 cents).

It was the first announcement by either Americans or British that they had tried to keep Berlin's trade going by air.

The announcement said British planes had carried 50,699 tons of goods into the city in the "biggest sustained airlift that has ever been accomplished by Great Britain."

"It can now be said that the Soviet attempt to completely disrupt the economic life of the western sectors has failed," the announcement stated.

British Seek Colony Aid

London, Aug. 22 (U.P.).—A "partnership" between the United States and the British Empire to exploit raw materials in British colonies needed for American industries will be discussed in talks beginning tomorrow between the British government and Marshall Plan experts.

The British are ready to propose to Evan Just, director of the strategic raw materials section, who is heading the American delegation, long term agreements under which the British empire would provide such items as lead, zinc, tin, rubber, chromite and molybdenum.

Both Treasury and Colonial Office officials will present plans for utilizing the vast resources of British overseas territories. On the American side, proposals for dollar investments on a large scale to speed production are expected.

British sources here are even talking of a United States financial partnership in the empire over a long period until American needs are satisfied.

It is believed here the recent dispatch of military reinforcements to Malaya to clear the tin mining and rubber areas of Communist bands is linked with plans to protect and exploit war material resources for joint U. S.-British need.

In addition to Britain and her colonies, the Netherlands and France are also being sounded to discover what their colonies can supply.

Reds Return RAF Pilot And Damaged Plane

Berlin, Aug. 22 (AP).—The British press center in Berlin said tonight the pilot of a British Vampire jet fighter plane who made a forced landing in the Russian occupation zone has been returned to the British zone.

An announcement said the pilot, Peter Jordan, was returned to an RAF station in Luebeck. The plane also was returned.

The plane landed near Gadesbusch last week. Russian sources reported the pilot was uninjured and said the plane was only slightly damaged.

Israel Prepared to Discuss Peace With Any Arab State

From Press Dispatches

Tel Aviv, Israel, Aug. 22.—The Israeli government made a new bid today for peace talks with the Arabs.

An Israeli foreign office spokesman said Israel is prepared to undertake "separate peace talks with each of the Arab countries."

Israel also asked the United Nations Security Council if it would provide specific guarantees of punishment for future violations of the current truce in Palestine.

Responding to the latest Security Council order banning reprisals against truce violators, Moshe Shertok, Israeli Foreign Minister, indicated the Jewish desire for further U. N. action to safeguard the truce, which daily seems to become more effective.

A previous Israeli bid for peace talks, transmitted through the United Nations mediator, Count Folke Bernadotte, was turned down by the Egyptan government. A source close to the Arab League said the league also had rejected the invitation on the ground the Arabs do not recognize "any such gang as the pseudo-government of Israel, which has no international status."

At Stockholm, Sweden, Bernadotte, said he has given up trying to arrange peaceful settlement of the Holy Land strife, at least until the United Nations General Assembly has considered the case.

Bernadotte said further attempts to arrange a peace conference would be futile at this time, because there seems to be no common ground for possible agreement between the Arabs and Jews.

Secretary of State Marshall told Bernadotte that President Truman "is giving his full support" to relief measures for Arab refugees.

Marshall's message was delivered through the United States Embassy at Stockholm.

Marshall said the American Red Cross and other relief agencies have pledged to supply all the DDT needed. They have also promised funds to purchase 10 per cent of the food needed by the refugees.

Swedish Maj. Gen. Aage Lundstroem, chief of the United Nations truce observers staff said in Haifa that "the truce is respected on all fronts except in the Jerusalem area." Lundstroem had been on a three-day trip to Tel Aviv, Ramallah and Jerusalem.

Industrial Output Reported Lagging

Millions Better Off

ERP Boosts European Production

Paris, Aug. 22 (NYHT.). — The European Recovery Program is off to a good start, the European edition of the New York Herald Tribune reported today. During the first half of 1948, the rate of industrial production in the participating countries was greater than in 1947 and was moving steadily ahead. Farm output showed promise of being far larger this year, and more transportation is available to move the larger number of things being made.

In the first of a series of regular monthly surveys the newspaper pointed out that 280 million Europeans are eating more, are better clothed and are better housed now that before the Marshall Plan began.

Trade Recovery Lags

But, the survey reported, trade recovery is lagging far behind and is seriously hampering the self-help of ERP countries.

The survey showed the steel industry has reached a rate of production 25 per cent greater than last year's. In the first half of 1948, coal was being produced at a rate 6 per cent above 1947. It enabled Europe to slash imports of American coal by 14 per cent. Output in most ERP countries, except Germany, had reached or surpassed prewar levels. The rate of electric power output was 20 per cent ahead of the prewar rate by 1947 and jumped 10 per cent ahead of 1947 during the first months of 1948.

Iron, Steel Output Up

With more fuel and power, ERP countries were producing 28 per cent more pig iron and ferro-alloys and 25 per cent more steel ingots and castings during the first half of 1948 than they were last year. Britain's rate of production for iron and steel by June was more than 42 per cent ahead of last year's level. The Anglo-American zones of Germany managed to boost the production rate on iron 77 per cent, and the level of steel output 30 per cent above 1947 by this June.

Last year's exports by western countries to eastern Europe (excluding Russia) were 55 per cent below the 1938 level. Eastern Europe's shipments to the West fell 67 per cent below 1938. In food, beverages and tobacco the eastern countries were sending to western Europe only 9 per cent of what they had in 1938.

That decline was equal to one fifth of western Europe's trade deficit with the Western Hemisphere in 1947. If prewar trade between the two areas had been restored last year, imports from the Western Hemisphere could have been cut 25 per cent.

Paris Liberation Day Quiet

Paris, Aug 22 (U.P.).—The fourth anniversary of the liberation of Paris from the Nazis was observed quietly today with ceremonies at the Arc de Triomphe and the Paris City Hall. A continual rain kept usually enthusiastic Parisians at home.

By The Associated Press

Signs of a slowdown in the steady postwar climb of American industrial production were reported yesterday by the Commerce Department.

While price increases gained rapidity, the department's monthly publication, Survey of Current Business, reported that industrial output was "moderately lower" in June and July than in the early part of the year. Output over the entire first six months was only slightly higher than in the last half of 1947, a special analysis showed.

"The rate of advance was probably the slowest for any six-month period since the postwar uptrend began, with fewer industries reporting gains in output and more reporting downward adjustments," the survey said.

Backlogs Worked Out

"It is apparent that additional industries have been added to the list of those which have worked off demand backlogs, though in a number of major industries the unfilled orders are still large. A few industries have staged a renewed upturn, after experiencing an earlier set-back."

New orders placed with manufacturers rose in June, after drifting lower in the first months of 1948, but production was handicapped in many cases by shortages of materials.

Out of 26 manufactured products, it was reported, nine have generally had an unbroken uptrend in production since 1945; 17 reached their postwar peaks, and have showed declines running to six months or more.

Many Reach Peaks

Among the earliest to reach their peaks were women's and children's clothing, shoes, truck-trailers, automobile tires, water heaters, glass containers and oil burners.

"Rising costs and increasing demand resulted in a further advance in the price level," the report said. "In recent weeks the area of rising prices has broadened and the pace of the advance has quickened.

"The outstanding deviation from the general upward trend of prices was in agricultural crop prices where there is the prospect of bumper crops aggregatinog about 6 per cent larger than the previous record harvest of 1946."

Firth Sterling Raises Price of Tool Steel

Pittsburgh, Aug. 23 (AP).—Firth Sterling Steel & Carbide Corp. of McKeesport, Pa., today announced a 10 per cent increase in the price of tool steel, stainless steel and specialty steels. The company said the price hike was due to increased costs of raw materials and production.

Oil Industry Board Named

Associated Press Staff Writer

Fifty-two oil industry officials were named yesterday to handle the distribution of hard-to-get gasoline and fuel oil in Midwest and East Coast States during the coming months.

They comprise two committees set up under a voluntary industry-wide program to assure adequate supplies to all essential customers. Under the program, approved by United States Attorney General Tom C. Clark, the committees will:

1. Give prority deliveries of both fuel oil and gasoline to the military.

2. Fill essential needs of farmers, railroads, institutions and other consumers whose services are necessary to the public health and safety.

3. Assure that all other customers, including motorists and home owners, are "equitably" supplied.

B. I. Graves, vice president of the Tide Water Associated Oil Co., New York, was named chairman of a committee to handle problems along the Atlantic seaboard. The Midwest committee is headed by B. L. Majewski, vice president of the Deep Rock Oil Corp., Chicago.

3 Navy Men Dead, 1 Missing In Guam Gasoline Explosions

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

Column of smoke rises from Navy tank farm in the Lank area of the naval establishment on Guam following a series of explosions

Guam, Aug. 22 (U.P.). — Three Navy men were killed and a fourth is missing in an explosion and fire which ripped through the Navy's gasoline storage depot here early today.

The entire island was shaken by the blast, which official reports blamed on a defective gauge that permitted gasoline to overflow into a ravine. A spark from a jeep caused the first explosion, and five more followed.

Those dead were identified as two chief petty officers and an enlisted man. One enlisted man was reported missing, and another is in critical condition from burns. Names were withheld by the Navy.

One of the chief petty officers rescued an enlisted man but was killed when he returned to aid a second man. Both succumbed to a wall of flames.

The initial blast was followed by others. Two or three 10,000-gallon tanks of aviation gasoline burned, shooting flames skyward. Smoke rolled thousands of feet into the air.

More than 1000 Civil Service workers were temporarily without quarters as a result of the explosion and fire.

All firefighting equipment was called to the scene. Hundreds of servicemen aided in battling the blaze, which continued throughout the night and attracted hundreds of spectators.

Intense heat in the fire area made it impossible to conduct an immediate search for casualties.

The gasoline storage depot here is the largest operated by the Navy in the western Pacific.

First Guam Casualties Announced by Navy

By The Associated Press

The Navy announced last night the following list of casualties in the fire on Guam:

Dead—Fondley Pearl Hansen, seamen, father, Fondley L. Hansen, 27 West 17th ave., Garfield, Utah; David Spence Moon, chief engineman, wife, Mrs. Bernice G. Moon, 43 Clark st., Portland, Me.

Seriously burned—William Wesley Foster, seaman, mother, Mrs. Arnes Foster, 337 52nd st., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Other names were withheld pending notification of families.

The Navy had no information as to whether Moon was the chief petty officer mentioned in a Guam dispatch as having saved one man from the fire and lost his life trying to save another.

ECA Allots $81,393,807; 70% Marked for Industry

By the United Press

ECA reported yesterday that it had made $81,393,807 in European authorization for the week ended last Wednesday. Almost 70 per cent was for industrial commodities.

Emphasizing recovery, not relief, for the 16 nations of western Europe and bizonal Germany, the report said that 40 million dollars was authorized for industrial items as compared to about 18 million dollars for food and agricultural commodities.

Ocean freight authorizations were about 23 million dollars.

The authorizations were for Austria, bizonal Germany, Denmark, France, the French zone of Germany, Greece, The Netherlands, Norway and China. They brought the total ECA outlay to last Wednesday to $1,188,321,689.

The higher percentage of industrial items was in line with Economic Cooperation Administrator Paul G. Hoffman's predictions that food and other relief items would decline as the $5,035,000,000 program got underway. He and other officials have indicated that machinery and other industrial items will make up the bulk of the recovery shipments for the quarter beginning October 1.

France received the largest total in the weekly list, with commodity authorizations of $35,915,295. Major item in the French list was $23,210,000 for coal.

Austria was authorized to receive $5,955,606 worth of miscellaneous electrical apparatus, coal, ferro alloys and silicon manganese, medical supplies and wheat.

Bizonal Germany was authorized to receive $6,500,100 worth of mechanical and rayon wood pulp and copra.

Greece was given $2,219,200 for cheese, nitrogen fertilizer, motor vehicles, motion picture projectors and equipment, motor gasoline, diesel oil, light fuel oil, and construction equipment and spare parts.

Foreign Countries Able to Use All Grains U. S. Can Export

By the United Press

The Agriculture Department said yesterday that foreign countries "very likely" will be able to use all the breadgrains the United States and Canada can export this year.

The prediction was included in an up-to-the-minute review of the world grain picture. Even with the improved crop outlook, it said, many people in Europe and Asia will not have enough to eat.

"Import demand continues high in both Europe and Asia for 1948-49, and is likely to absorb all exportable supplies available from North America," the department said.

Most Government officials believe United States grain exports this year will be limited by transportation shortages rather than supplies. A prospective record grain crop 1,300,000,000 bushels larger than a year ago should enable this country to meet all domestic and export needs and still have some grain left.

It is conceded, however, that shortages of boxcars and terminal shipping facilities probably will make it impossible to export more than 600 million bushels of wheat, flour and coarse grains.

European breadgrain production is "sharply above" last year's small harvest but about 10 per cent below prewar. Europe's expected wheat crop of 1,460,000,000 bushels would be some 445 million bushels larger than in 1947.

This increase alone roughly is equal to the amount of wheat and flour the United States funneled abroad last year. Total United States grain shipments last year are put at about 570 million bushels, but 100 million bushels were coarse grains like corn.

D.C. Per Capita Salaries Gain

Delaware, $1646; California, $1643, and Montana, $1641.

The Commerce Department tabulation showed Nation-wide income to be 25 per cent above the war peak year of 1944, with States in the Northwest farm belt pocketing 20 per cent more cash than the previous year.

More than a third of the Nation's income was in the Eastern States, which accounted for a total of 67 billion dollars of the 190-billion-dollar total. All 15 Southern States were among the 16 with the lowest averages.

Decline of war industry after VJ-Day gave the Far West the smallest relative increase of any region, the Commerce Department figures showed. The totals were based on income received from all sources.

About 28 per cent of all United States income was in the large Central States area. The 13 States in the Southwest and Northwest regions accounted for more than 10 per cent.

Wallace Angered By Missouri Action

New York, Aug. 22 (AP).—Henry A. Wallace said today action by Missouri's Secretary of State in keeping him off that State's general election ballot "is in shocking contempt of the people's rights."

The Progressive Party's presidential candidate said the ruling by Missouri Secretary of State Edgar C. Nelson "is a bald-faced effort to steal the Missouri election."

Nelson said yesterday in Jefferson City, Mo., that he had upheld objections to the Progressive Party's attempt to file Wallace for President and Senator Glen H. Taylor for Vice President. The Missouri official said only that the Progressive Party had not complied with Missouri election laws.

"I warn Mr. Truman that the people of his State are in no mood to tolerate any more stolen elections. They say how cynically Democratic Senators in the Eightieth Congress voted down the line to stop the Kem investigation of the mystery of thousands of missing Kansas City votes.

"Missourians also saw how the Democratic Senators did not go down the line against the Taft-Hartley Act and most Democrats and Republicans joined to support the draft, to appropriate billions for the cold war and to reject the Taylor-Isacsson bill to roll prices back to 1946 levels.

"Like growing millions in other States, the people of Missouri demand a free choice between the old parties and the Progressive Party. Progressive Party leaders in Missouri tell me that our drive there for signatures on nominating petitions is rolling over the top."

lace, his chief of staff, met him at the landing and accompanied him on the quarter-mile walk to the chapel.

There, the Lutheran chaplain, Comdr. E. P. Wuebbens of Flanagan, Ill., voiced a fervent hope that peoples and nations eventually will be able to live together as "good shipmates and good neighbors."

Immediately after the services, the President returned to his yacht to resume his 9-day vacation. He is working on speeches for the 1948 campaign to be opened formally with an address in Detroit on Labor Day.

The Williasburg will leave at 3 a. m. (EST) tomorrow for Lewes, Del., where she will anchor tomorrow night. There she will be joined by the destroyer J. B. Kennedy, as an escort ship for the trip out to sea for about 15 hours.

Presidential Press Secretary Charles G. Ross said Mr. Truman is enjoying his vacation. Ross said that no writing had been done yet on the President's Detroit speech. "He has been talking it over with his staff," Ross explained.

Jap Suicides Pose Problem for Atami

Atami, Japan, Aug. 22 (AP).—The city assembly for this seaside resort is studing a supplemental appropriation for disposal of the bodies of sucides.

Atami is such a favorite scene for sucidal leaps by unhappy lovers that the 300,000-yen (above $1100) annual appropriation for recovering bodies already has been exhausted.

City officials said thus far they had disposed of 60 cases, since spring, but this is not an accurate guide to the number of deaths, since a "case" often means a pair of lovers rather than one.

'Threat to Liberty'

FEPC Called Un-American By Thurmond

Gov. J. Strom Thurmond, Dixiecrat nominee for President, attacked the proposed fair employment practices act yesterday as "the most dangerous assault on our fundamental liberties ever conceived under law by the mind of man."

Thurmond's attack was made in a transcribed radio interview broadcast by station WEAM. Charles Parmer interviewed the South Carolina governor.

"In my opinion, the FEPC, the so-called fair employment practices act, is a most vicious un-American proposal to break down State lines and turn America into a Socialist, Fascist or Communistic state," Thurmond said.

Fears Curbs on Business

"No man could any longer call his private business his own. He would lose the right to hire whom he pleases, whom he finds best suited to carry on his work and to get along with his other employes. He could not promote or demote as his judgment demands. . . ."

Thurmond said that "the clamor" for a Federal antisegregation law "comes from agitators and socially maladjusted persons who do not care or do not understand the individual circumstances of communities where the races must work and live together."

"If such (antisegregation) laws were passed," he continued, "there would be no Harlem in New York, no Chinatown in San Francisco, no Southside in Chicago, nor communities of the sort in other cities."

Against Poll Taxes

Thurmond said he views lynching as "the worst form of murder," but insisted punishment of mobs should be left to the States. He said payment or nonpayment of poll taxes also was a matter reserved to the States by the Constitution and he had advocated repeal of South Carolina's levy.

"Under the guise of antilynching, the Reds, pinks and subversives are making use of the horror whiich the American people have for lynching to change our form of government," he continued.

In answer to a question, the South Carolinian said he believes the Dixiecrats will carry "most, if not all, the southern States, and some others in addition."

McGrath Says GOP Plans Sales Tax

By the United Press

Chairman J. Howard McGrath of the Democratic National Committee said yesterday the Republicans plan to push a sales tax through the next session of Congress to help "their rich campaign contributors."

In a formal statement, McGrath urged the voters not to be misled by the GOP's description of the levy as a "broad base excise tax." He blamed the "lavish" cut given "upper bracket taxpayers" by the Eightieth Congress for having forced the Government into the red, and said the GOP now has seized on the sales tax as the best way to again balance the budget.

New York, Aug. 22 (AP). — The Progressive Party, with 47 women seeking State and congressional posts in 16 States, "will have more women candidates on the November ballot than any major party," an official claimed today.

Mrs. Elinor Gimbel, national chairman of Women for Wallace, said party candidates to date include 11 women seeking congressional posts, 22 legislative posts and a number of others running for judicial and State office.

Leland Stowe Explains How to Live Today

By the United Press

Foreign Correspondent Leland Stowe yesterday offered wives and mothers 9 suggestions on how to live in a war-weary and war-worried world.

Writing in the current issue of Woman's Home Companion, he told them it is possible to take "this very uncertain world much as you take the hazards of your children's health and your husband's income." Here is what he suggested they do:

1. Recognize that the world crisis will continue straight through this century because four fifths of the world's population "are clamoring for justice and a better livelihood."

2. Remember that war is never inevitable until hostilities actually start.

3. Cultivate the long view and you won't go off the deep end. "Actual armed Soviet expansion in Europe will require many preparatory steps."

4. Remember that the odds against any early war are tremendous. "Another 10 or 15 years must pass before that deep physchological rejection of war recedes in any people, definitely including the Russians."

5. Don't forget the extremely important atomic obstacle to any early major conflict. It would be suicidal for Russia to go to war with the United States for the next 12 years or more since they do not have the industrial facilities to produce atomic bombs.

6. Be realistic. Remember that the average crisis is like the mumps or measles. "The current attack of Russian measles is pretty persistent and aggravating, but you know how to sit out a siege of measles one step at a time."

7. Try to avoid being emotional about world politics.

Experts Study Revision of Military Law

By the United Press

Some of the Nation's best legal talent is at work revising the systems of justice of the Army, Navy and Air Force.

Assigned the task of codifying and equalizing military law is a committee of outstanding lawyers, headed by Prof. Edmund Morris Morgan, jr., of the Harvard Law School. Among the members are Undersecretary of the Navy W. John Kenney, Assistant Secretary of the Army Gordon Gray, and Assistant Air Secretary Eugene M. Zuckert.

They will draft legislation for presentation to the next Congress intended to eliminate long-standing inequalities among the justice systems of the three branches. Some idea of the magnitude of their job may be gleaned from the fact that it took a committee of the American Bar Association three years to codify the civil legal system.

Chairman Gurney (R., S. Dak.) of the Senate Armed Services Committee, called on Defense Secretary James Forrestal to produce a uniform system of justice for all services. Forrestal then appointed the committee which, as far as possible, will map similar procedures and punishments for the three branches. Former servicemen have complained that the Army is more severe for some offenses than the Navy.

The last Congress made an attempt to amend the justice systems of the Army and Navy, but members complained that they received a mass of conflicting proposals from service officials. It did grant an Air Force demand that it be permitted to conduct its own courtsmartial under the Army's Articles of war, but that was considered only a stop-gap measure until military law could be codified.

The Army had a committee of the American Bar Association study its system and submit recommendations. Congress then amended the Articles of War by adopting a rider to the Selective Service bill. But, like the Air Forces changes, these are considered only temporary, pending a complete overhaul of all three systems.

Three or four Navy boards studied its system, but Congress decided it could stand as is for the time being.

32 Million Students Forecast This Fall

By The Associated Press

A new high record of nearly 32 million students will swarm into schools and colleges this fall, the Office of Education forecast yesterday.

By the 1956-57 school year, the enrollment flood is expected to rise another seven million. This increase is attributed to the Nation's soaring birth rate during and since the war.

Report on Situation

Government specialists told a news conference:

1. The draft law will have little effect on college enrollments this year.

2. War veterans in colleges will decline 100,000 to a total of one million—about 45 per cent of all college enrollment.

3. There will be fewer substandard teachers this year, but the shortage of instructors will become increasingly acute in grammar schools.

4. The space shortage will be the "worst of any time in American history." School building programs are not keeping pace.

5. Elementary schools will be hardest hit for space and teaching talent.

Turn for Better

Commenting on these trends, the office said the past two years saw a "turn for the better" in the schools, but war's impact had not been fully offset.

"Unfortunately, the gains have not been firmly secured," it was said. "Unless a vast multitude of alert and able young men and women enter the great profession of teaching, our children will suffer and our Nation will suffer."

The nearly 32 million expected to enroll this year will include an estimated 22,797,000 in grammar school, 6,270,000 in high school and 2,500,000 in college. The new draft law will have slight effect this year because it provides for postponement of induction of any college student until the end of any academic year in which he has enrolled.

In the 1946-47 year veterans accounted for 53 per cent of college enrollment. The figure dropped to 48 per cent in 1947-48 and is figured to slide to 45 per cent this fall.

Hospitals' 1946 Babies Set Record

More United States babies were born in hospitals in 1946 than ever before, according to figures of the National Office of Vital Statistics of the Public Health Service.

A record 82.4 per cent of all registered live births throughout the Nation occurred in hospitals in 1946. About 12 per cent of new babies that year arrived outside a hospital, but with the aid of a physician, and another 5 per cent came into the world with a midwife or nonmedical attendant present.

In 1935 only 36.9 per cent of United States births occurred in hospitals.

In the District, 94.9 per cent of the babies born in 1946 were delivered in hospitals. California had the highest proportion of hospital births that year with a score of 98.9 per cent. Mississippi had the lowest, with 38.6 per cent

Midwives delivered 36.6 per cent of the babies born in Mississippi as compared to 0.2 per cent of the California babies, and no District babies.

While about 7 out of 8 white babies were born in hospitals in 1946, only one out of two nonwhite babies arrived in hospitals.

Differences were not so great between urban and rural residents. About 93 per cent of urban babies were born in hospitals, compared to about 67 per cent of rural babies. Physicians attended about 98 per cent of urban births compared to about 90 per cent of rural births.

Heiress, Acquitted in Parents Death, Engaged to Policeman

Los Angeles, Aug. 22 (AP).—Beulah Louise Overell, 19-year-old heiress acquitted with a former fiance of murder charges in the yacht-blast deaths of her parents, announced today that she will marry a Los Angeles policeman, Robert Cannon.

Announcement of their engagement was made over the weekend at a party celebrating his twenty-eighth birthday.

"This is the real thing," Miss Overell said. "I love Bob very much. He has a terrific sense of humor."

They met through friends last April.

Cannon, a former Air Force gunnery instructor, has been married twice. He said his divorce from Laverne Del Santo, former film player, will become final next May. He and the heiress plan to wed soon after that.

"Miss Overell is a good wholesome girl and a real sport," Cannon said. "We will live on my salary as a policeman. I am not interested in how much money Louise will receive when she becomes 21."

Miss Overell and a former boy friend, George (Bud) Gollum, were acquitted of charges of slaying her wealthy parents, who were killed in an explosion aboard their yacht in Newport Harbor, March 15, 1947.

Visiting Teachers Thank U. S. For 'Bonniest' English Youth

Thanks to a beneficent America, the war-born crop of British youth is "the bonniest generation of all" in England's history.

This and numerous other hands-across-the-sea expressions of friendship, and gratitude were made here yesterday by representatives of some 115 British teachers beginning a one-year visit to the United States. They will work in public schools throughout the country under a revitalized exchange system.

Mrs. Violet Phillips, a specialist in nursery school instruction, attributed "in large measure" the excellent physical condition of toddling preschool English children to the "fruit juices and other nourishing foods" made available through lend-lease.

She served as spokesman for the teachers who spent the weekend at American University before departing for their posts in American schools.

A similar number of American teachers already have arrived in England under the exchange program, which has been dormant since the early days of the war.

"We're so very pleased and happy with what we've seen already, and we're extremely anxious to study your educational methods and learn whatever we may incorporate in our own schools," said Miss Muriel Willott. She is a teacher in the Westhill County Primary School, Torquay, England. Children between 5 and 11 are her chief concern.

Miss Willott, who feels that 'England and America are really quite alike," will go to Girard College, a free school for boys in Philadelphia.

"I'm particularly interested in your language instruction in secondary schools," remarked Miss Margery E. Lee, who is bound for Santa Rosa (Calif.) Junior High School.

Miss Lee's school in England, a "secondary modern" institution in Plymouth for children 13 and 14 years old, has taken a leaf from the American educational book already.

The blitz, which destroyed much of the school's physical plant, has not been a deterrent in pursuit of up-to-date methods of instruction centered on development of the child's character and personality as well as his mind.

"Our system there is very similar to that used over here," she said.

Both Miss Willott and Miss Lee, whom Mrs. Phillips described as "representative members" of the visiting contingent, seemed fired with enthusiasm for their new undertaking.

And it was hinted that they not only intend to get new ideas while teaching here, but also to offer a few worthwhile suggestions.

Ringlings Send 7 Sea Lions to Zoo at Hamburg

Hamburg, Germany, Aug. 22 (U.P.). Seven sea lions, a gift from America, arrived today as a contribution to Hamburg's war-depleted zoo.

The lions are a present from John and Henry Ringling, circus officials of Sarasota, Fla., to Carl Henry Hagenbeck, the fourth owner of "Tellingen in Hamburg," an animal park which is celebrating its 100th anniversity this year.

The sea lions arrived aboard the Cunard liner Vardulia. Eight sea lions started the 26-day journey from New York but one went on a hunger strike and died en route.

The Hagenbeck Zoo had more than 5000 animals in 1939. Now it has 507.

Lie Detectors

The Keeler "polygraph," which is the mechanical lie detector now most widely used, records the subject's respiration, blood pressure, pulse and certain electrical responses during questioning. Its theory is that, if a subject answers a question untruthfully, an immediate reaction in terms of these physical responses will be registered on the recorder. It is said by the man who developed it, Leonarde Keeler of Chicago, that he considers it 82 per cent accurate. The device is still in process of improvement. The courts of the country have consistently refused to accept lie detector tests alone. In the District of Columbia, for example, lie detector tests are not authorized for persons charged with crime and results of such tests if made privately whether favorable or unfavorable to an accused person, are not admitted as evidence by the courts.

There are two principal hazards, besides the margin of error noted above, in accepting the results of a lie detector test. One is that the lie detector, registering as it does only physical reaction to emotion, could not detect unintentional falsehood. Thus a deluded person telling a lie which he sincerely believed to be the truth might go altogether undetected, while a person striving desperately to recall events long past and emotionally upset by the importance of the test might seem to be lying when in fact speaking truthfully. The other hazard lies in the possibility of misjudgment or bias on the part of the person conducting the test. In a situation where one of two conflicting witnesses must be lying, an outcome indicating that both were telling the truth—quite possible if the lying were not deliberate—would be disastrous to the claims of the lie detector's sponsor.

Ever since trial by ordeal was abandoned in Europe in the Middle Ages, Anglo-Saxon peoples have found the most reliable means of sifting truth from falsehood to be trial by jury. Such trial, entailing as it does confrontation of the accuser and the accused in open court, cross-examination and the exclusion of incompetent testimony and irrelevant evidence by a judge responsible for protecting the rights of those brought before him, is the best method of administering justice that men have yet devised. There is no good reason why an accused person should be called upon to submit to any other test.

Science Fund

Four of the country's great endowed institutions of learning, Columbia, Yale, Harvard and Princeton, will be enabled, under the terms of a private bequest, to pursue the scientific research and experimentation which was to have been promoted on a wider scale by the National Science Foundation bill which the Eightieth Congress failed to enact. The will of the late Eugene Higgins establishes a 40-million-dollar trust fund, the income of which is to be shared equally by the four universities for the purpose of fostering "education in natural and physical science." In these days of high estate and income taxes, a bequest of such magnitude is a rarity. In this instance, it is the more interesting, coming as it does from a man whose name is probably unfamiliar to most Americans, although he was known before the turn of the century as a lavish party-giver and as the "wealthiest bachelor in New York." He had lived abroad for many years and died, at the age of 90, still unmarried.

Mr. Higgins, withdrawn though he had been for so long a time from participation in contemporary public affairs, must have sensed what Congress has been so slow to understand, that the encouragement of scientific study is indispensable, in this age of technology, to the maintenance of progress and even of security. With all its engineering skill and mechanical supremacy, the United States is not demonstrating leadership in the realm of pure science or basic research in which all new developments or practical scientific applications are necessarily rooted. The Higgins bequest should help to remedy this serious defect. Would that some other citizen of wealth would now bequeath 40 million or so for research in the social sciences—so that we may understand better than we now appear to how to utilize and manage the knowledge of nature unfolded to our view.

Investigation Methods

Assuming the justification of the present hearings before the Un-American Activities Committee—and the justification may yet be proved by the shortcomings of the grand jury in New York—the question of most importance to this newspaper is the procedure of the committee. Because of the great importance of the investigative power, we have been concerned, ever since the Howard Hughes hearings, lest repeated abuses lead to degrading it. That concern seems to be widely shared by the public. Sensitive to this public opinion, even the Un-American Activities Committee has recently made a point of questioning witnesses with more courtesy and of soliciting statements to the effect that it has acted fairly. Unfortunately, however, these superficial efforts to heed the public demand for truly democratic procedure stop far short of guaranteeing to accused individuals the kind of protection and consideration that free men have a right to expect.

Since the testimony of the Hiss brothers has sharply contradicted that of Whittaker Chambers, their accuser, committee members have frequently emphasized a desire to cut through all bluster and lying to the stark truth. With a good deal of fanfare, they have also arranged for a "confrontation session" on Wednesday when Mr. Chambers and Mr. Hiss will face each other in public. Numerous other witnesses are being asked to throw what light they can on the underlying facts in the case. But all this is taking place after charges that may destroy the reputations of the accused persons have been broadcast throughout the land.

It can scarcely be said that the committee has followed this course to avoid the charge of indulging in star chamber procedure. It does not eschew secret sessions when they seem to further its purposes. Indeed, after Mr. Chambers' accusations were made and denied in open hearings the committee reverted to closed hearings in an effort to determine which witness had perjured himself. To our way of thinking this is the reverse of good procedure. Certainly the committee should have known that Mr. Hiss would categorically deny the Chambers testimony before it presented that testimony in an open hearing. The committee staff would then have had an opportunity to make a more thorough inquiry. If further evidence thus quietly collected had undermined Mr. Chambers' story, his accusations could have been dropped with no damage done, except to himself. Conversely, if the additional evidence had sustained him, the committee would then have been in a position to bring the case into the light of day without the confusion and uncertainty that have marked its recent efforts and without the discredit upon itself that sloppy, inconsistent and unfair methods must inevitably bring.

At least some of the contradiction of testimony could have been avoided by the simple expedient of having Mr. Chambers present to face the men whom he accused at the time they testified. Instead, the committee merely asked Alger Hiss to identify a picture of Mr. Chambers and let his failure to do so stand as a challenge to his veracity. When the committee later got around to examining the two men face to face, it was behind closed doors in New York. We have not yet heard the full details of this meeting, but it at least enabled Mr. Hiss to conclude that he had known Mr. Chambers as George Crosley. Even abrupt confrontation in a hearing room, however, has its limitations in getting at the whole truth. Witnesses may be temporarily confused and memories of events long ago may be blurred. Far more reliable is preliminary probing into both sides of the case to be followed by the checking of discrepancies in testimony before damning charges are aired in public.

We are not here suggesting elaborate secret hearings, although some reputable congressional investigating committees regularly use that means of sifting charges involving the reputations of individuals. Secret hearings open the door to grave abuses of a different sort. In the hands of an unscrupulous committee they may be the source of more harm than of protection to the individual. What is more important, in our opinion, is expert and unbiased staff work in sifting charges before they are ever carried to the hearing room. That is the regular practice of investigating committees which are more interested in finding the facts than in smearing individuals or groups. The Un-American Activities Committee would be in a much stronger position today if it had adhered to this procedure. For even if it succeeds in proving the charges in Mr. Chambers' testimony, its careless headline hunting is likely to leave an aura of controversy about the case. And of course if the Chambers accusations should crumble under thorough scrutiny, the committee would be utterly discredited.

Atomic Cooperation

Continuation of the wartime cooperative effort on the part of the United States, Great Britain and Canada in the development of atomic power, as disclosed by AEC Chairman Lilienthal in a speech in New York Saturday night, is no substitute, of course, for a genuine international atomic control system. The United States had hoped to bring every nation into a single world agency for the control of atomic power. That would have made it possible to abolish all secrecy and to correlate the efforts of scientists everywhere to exploit this great discovery for peacetime use. No three nations can reasonably hope to achieve those great objectives. Even though their experts and their statesmen work together, they must keep their operations secret. And they are compelled by the inexorable necessities of self-defense to devote a major portion of their efforts to designing and building more terrible instruments of destruction.

It is an encouraging fact, however, that the failure of world atomic control has not prevented a more limited international approach. In the months ahead it may be possible to extend the area of cooperation in atomic research and development to other countries. Possession of this unique source of power may become a rallying point for nations primarily interested in peace and freedom. In spite of the great difficulties of internationalization of atomic power while the Soviet Union excludes itself from any rational control system, we hope that every possibility of bringing other democratic powers into the present three-nation agreement will be explored. Joint action among the free nations for their own protection has become so vital that no avenue to cooperation among them can be safely ignored.

Battle Of The Bottles

The "bottle clubs," which the Metropolitan Police are now seeking to suppress, are said to be numerous in Washington and present a serious problem. These clubs exist for the benefit of persons, apparently including some members of Congress, who are not satisfied to complete their imbibations of alcoholic liquors by midnight on Saturdays or within two hours after midnight on other days. In other words, a bottle club is a way of evading the restrictions imposed on licensed bars in hotels, cafes, restaurants, and ordinary night clubs.

The procedure is for the member to purchase a bottle of his favorite liquor which is given into the custody of the club's bartender, who labels it with the member's name and deposits it on a convenient shelf, much after the practice followed with shaving mugs in old-fashioned barber shops. Thus when the member calls for a drink, his bottle is fetched by the bartender or waiter. He is also provided with soda water or some other standard dilutent for which the club makes a charge which the member is expected to pay even if he decides to take his liquor neat. In some clubs a cover charge is also exacted.

So far, the practice appears to be technically within the law as it applies to licensed private clubs. However, many of these bottle clubs are to all purposes and appearances all-night cabarets, with their own orchestras, floor shows and facilities for dancing. Some appear to have acquired the character of all-night speakeasies, where it is possible for persons other than registered members to purchase drinks, if they are willing or able to pay the prices charged for the service. Plainclothes police operatives are said to have been visiting these clubs in a search for evidence. Early last Saturday, a few minutes after the legal closing time for bars, there were police raids on three large clubs. Eighteen persons were arrested, of whom seven were subsequently charged with illegally possessing and selling intoxicants.

The police action appears to have been stimulated by pressures on the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board by hotel managers and the proprietors of restaurants, cocktail lounges and early closing night clubs. Their complaint, which is not without plausibility and justice, is that the bottle clubs are diverting a good deal of lucrative business from them, that they are in fact being economically penalized for observing the closing laws.

One of the many evil heritages of the prohibition era is the widespread notion that all laws which seek to regulate drinking habits may be evaded without scruple if opportunity for it offers. It is fairly obvious that the enforcement of any law must depend on the willingness of the great majority of citizens to comply with it. Where, as is said to be the case with the bottle clubs, the very lawmakers are willing to set an example of evasion, the cause looks well-nigh hopeless. It has been suggested that the problem of enforcement might be rendered a good deal easier if the Saturday night closing clause of the law were amended to extend the hour to 2 a. m. Sunday morning. This plan, however, would probably encounter the united opposition of religious elements in the community, including many who are personally opposed to prohibition and are not themselves abstainers.

Thus, any way you take it, the bottle clubs have created a headache for the District government. A paragraph in Mr. Walter Wood's survey of the situation, published in The Washington Post of August 22, indicates that it might easily become something worse than a headache. He quotes the proprietor of one club as having said angrily: "If it becomes necessary to bring muscle into play, I will import it, and I'm not kidding."

If this means what it seems to mean—the threat of an alliance between the all-night entertainment industry and the underworld, such as exists or has existed in some other cities—the bottle clubs have become not only a problem but a menace.

SIEVE

A virus is as vivid now
In microscopic sight
As crystal constellations caught
By telescopic light.
For instruments we search with zeal
To make minutest things more real.

Impalpable as is the dew
Strung on a spider's string
In morning greyness, our keen minds
Greatness and vastness bring:
The annotations on its length,
The connotations of its strength.

Yet, in the seepage from the heart
The rivers of the mind
Collect the microbes of old hates
Whose colonies we find
Slipping through our myopic sieve,
Too quick and too diminutive.

Segregated Army

Gen. Omar N. Bradley recently repeated the old Army refrain on segregation of Negro troops in the Army.

The Army refrain covers up a most serious false assumption. It assumes that the Army is simply abiding by the existing customs and traditions of the country as a whole. Actually, this is not so.

Social customs and prejudices never remain fixed. They move either forward or backward. The armed services in enforcing a segregtion more rigorous than ever found in civilian life, not only fail to adjust their regulations in accord with existing realities, they move us backward.

Some defenders of the Army policy defend it on the basis of their belief that many Negroes themselves do not want to abolish segregation. A more significant truth is that most Negroes are deeply indignant that they are forced to serve in a Jim Crow Army, that they are asked to offer their lives for democracy as second class citizens serving in ghetto units.

If the contention is made that some move in the direction of abolition of segregation might disturb the morale of the Army, it is also possible to believe that it would strengthen the morale and fiber of our people.

If General Bradley were the fortnright American his defenders insist, he would not insist on one over-all policy for the United States Army, but would develop volunteer units, as a beginning, for mixed companies where assignments would reflect the racial proportions of the country as a whole, about one Negro to ten white soldiers. With intelligent leadership, there is not the slightest doubt that this would work out well.

Radio Freedom

According to a news item of August 16, I see that some clergymen are of the opinion that the Federal Communications Commission should deny atheists and infidels the right to broadcast their opposition views to religion over the radio to the general public.

Our Government, which appoints and controls the Federal Communication Commissioners, is a civil and not a religious institution, and knows no heresy or heterodoxy. It maintains a position of absolute neutrality upon all religious questions and permits religious as well as nonreligious people to express their opinions so long as they respect the equal rights of their fellow citizens. If they slander or libel their fellow citizens, the injured can bring court action for redress of grievances and justice will be given the injured parties.

Though I do not agree with the atheist or infidel, I must be willing to defend his right to express his opinion, the same as I would my own right to my opinion, for the right of all citizens is made secure only as long as the right of each individual is made safe by a Government which offers protection to all its citizens alike, whether they are religious or nonreligious. I do not understand religious liberty unless I am willing to grant my opponent the same rights and privileges I demand for myself.

Chinese Students

The scholars and students in China have traditionally exercised great influence in political affairs. Their attitude toward the Communist rebellion affords valuable guidance, therefore, for the foreign observer as to the merits of Communist pretensions in China.

Accordingly, it is of the highest significance that during the past two months over 13,000 high school students from the two provinces of Honan and Shantung have escaped as refugees from Red tyranny in those two provinces and have taken shelter in the national government's capital at Nanking, where the government is making every endeavor to continue their schooling.

Reminiscent of the western trek of China's students to escape Japanese regimentation, there is a touching loyalty in the bravery of these youngsters who forsake home and family out of a sense of patriotic devotion to the nation—another nation that the Communists would sacrifice on the altar of the world-wide Marxist revolution.

Farm Demonstration

In the wake of the Thrasher farm soil conservation demonstration so excellently and fully reported in The Washington Post of August 19, I feel inclined to make a few remarks. As an agriculturist and a graduate of the Landbouwhoogeschool (agricultural college) at Wageningen in the Netherlands, I was most favorably impressed with this show, which to my mind, is one of the most typical expressions of the American spirit and character I have seen during my more than 24 years of residence in this country.

However, the problem of soil erosion is world-wide. In the last month or so I have come across a report on soil erosion in Greece and a book dealing with the same problem as it presents itself in South Africa. Consequently, it should be tackled in an international way.

The International Food and Agricultural Organization might well call a conference on this question. I am sure the agricultural attaches of Great Britain, India, Burma, Egypt, Belgium and the Netherlands, who were at the demonstration, would agree with this. They could awaken their governments to the importance of the problem. It is a pity that they were not given an opportunity to give their impressions before the microphone. This would have given the rebroadcast of the event by the Voice of America somewhat of an international flavor.

Meanwhile the United States Soil Conservation Service could give demonstrations of this kind in countries abroad. Some years ago, if I remember well, a commission of United States experts went to China to study agriculture and soil erosion problems there. Such demonstrations, it seems to me, would be far more effective than broadcasting the event and showing pictures.

Unified Defense Plan

"Should the fury of ultra-modern war strike America tomorrow, continental defense and counterattack would hinge upon unanimous decision in a committee meeting," says Marshall Andrews in your issue of August 16. I doubt it.

Says he further: "No informed person disagrees with the belief that any future wars will be marked by an unannounced attack, overwhelming in its ferocity and power, aimed at speedy immobilization of this Nation's military potential." I thoroughly disagree.

Note that Russian air bases are farther from the United States than our bases abroad are from Russia. Our own Air Force has not yet demonstrated any ability to stage round-trip transoceanic bombing missions. One-way missions can be used only for a limited effort without crippling the air force which attempts them. There is little reason to suppose that an essentially land-minded nation with no experience in long-range mass bombing could complete, or would contemplate, the massive and suicidal effort necessary to obtain success by one-way attack without atomic bombs.

If war came tomorrow, what should we expect? Sabotage on a colossal scale, certainly. A submarine and mine campaign against our shipping undoubtedly. A few token terror raids with conventional bombs, against our most exposed cities, possibly. Small-scale air attack with bacterial weapons, probably. A destructive raid with conventional bombs probably not, unless perhaps against Washington.

In fact, if war came tomorrow, beyond any doubt the foremost Russian concern would be to eradicate and occupy our European, Asiatic and Mediterranean bases with all haste, lest we use them successfully against the Russian interior. For at least two months such a campaign would fully occupy the main strength of the Russians.

Defense against sabotage, so far as it is an armed force task, is that of each service with respect to its own installations, and that of the Army with respect to other objectives. Defense against submarines and mines is a Navy task. Local defense against air attack is an Air Force responsibility so far as fighter defense is concerned. Do these services have to be told how to accomplish their tasks?

Does the Air Force have to be told how to use the planes it has in Europe? Does the Navy have to be told how to use the carriers it has in European waters? Or is it merely that someone else wishes to tell each service how to use them?

Mr. Andrews says that there must be a workable plan of defense and counterattack, and authority to put this plan into effect. How can such an offensive be planned until we know more fully our enemy's plan, the weapons we and the enemy will have when the time comes, and the bases we will have from which to launch it?

Mr. Andrews cites disagreement among the services as to the ultimate offensive strategy, and says we therefore need authority to put a single plan into effect, vested in a commander who controls all the means of warfare. He then argues for a single military head of all the Nation's armed forces, and for a general staff in the Prussian pattern.

This is not Prussia. We have a civilian government. Its Constitution provides for a commander in chief of the armed forces—the President of the United States. There is no dissension in the armed services today that could not be resolved into an efficient working harmony by a President who wanted to act like a commander in chief, or by a Secretary of Defense who had the full backing of the President in such matters.

The Inheritors

APE AND ESSENCE, by Aldous Huxley. (Harper, $2.50.)

Once again Mr. Huxley has descended from his cloud of unknowing to concern himself with the vain and foolish things of earth, among which, of course, the silliest and stupidest are the creatures called men and women. The purpose of this novel, I take it, is to revise the somewhat too cheerful view of human destiny presented in Brave New World. The tenure of the ultra-Comtean and super-Fordian dispensation there envisaged is to be much briefer than he had supposed; as far as I can make out from the text, Mr. Huxley now anticipates its downfall before the end of the present century. Thus, although test-tube babies are already a commonplace, it seems unlikely that our technological civilization has time enough left in which to achieve the point of triumph, once envisaged by Mr. Huxley, when mankind would be generated in state hatcheries, according to specifications prepared by sociological engineers. What Mr. Huxley now forsees is the premature extinction of the Brave New World in an atomic and bacteriological war. His story, however, is concerned with the survivors, a degenerate and miserable race, grotesquely deformed by the irradiation of its chromosomes and by the ravages of synthetic glanders.

In the year A. D. 2108 (for the Fordian calendar appears to have been either lost or abandoned) a scientific expedition from New Zealand arrives by sailing ship off the coast of southern California to explore the ruins of Los Angeles. It is supposed that human life has been extinct on the continent for upwards of a hundred years, but actually there are Americans and Mexicans still living among the ruins by organized ghoulishness under the demonocratic and totalitarian rule of a class of eunuchs which calls itself the priesthood of Belial. The principal occupation of these people appears to be digging up the carefully embalmed and richly clad corpses of movie moguls, Hollywood beauties and businessmen of the earlier twentieth century. Apart from the priests and a few secular chiefs, these survivors are quite illiterate, and no one is left who knows enough about machinery to repair the gadgets that are disintegrating from rust or to get the public utilities back into operation. However, they have managed to raise a few goats and to cultivate a little corn which is made into flour and baked in the state ovens; these are fired with volumes from the Huntington Library, although it is of course only a question of time until even this bountiful source of fuel will be exhausted. The form of social organization is somewhere between that of a modern police state and that of a primitive tribe.

Among the various tabus prescribed by the priests and enforced by the secular arm is one against lovemaking. Members of the female sex are obliged to stitch warning symbols on appropriate parts of their garments. But once a year the Feast of Belial is celebrated with an elaborate liturgy and rather horrendous ceremonies, devised for it by Mr. Huxley, and this is followed by a brief but officially sanctioned period of promiscuity, which, as our author describes it, resembles in some particulars the rut season of herd animals and in others what classical archeologists have conjectured about the Priapic festivals. At this season, too, all sickly, mentally deficient or seriously malformed babies born during the preceding year are put to death; however, the standards of fitness enforced by the priests are necessarily more liberal than those of the Spartan Ephors; a child, it seems, is allowed up to six nipples and seven fingers or toes on either hand or foot.

One of the explorers from New Zealand, a young botanist named Poole, is surprised and captured by a band of the native monsters on his first visit ashore. He is taken before a lay chieftain, whom he persuades, not without difficulty, to spare his life, promising that he will find way to increase the food production. It is mainly through Dr. Poole's subsequent adventures that the story, if we may call it that, is unfolded. I think that I have recounted enough of it to show that the intention is satirical, in the stricter meaning of the word. That is to say, Mr. Huxley is engaged in his favorite athletic exercise of scourging the vices and superstitions of an anthropocentric world. His twenty-second century monsters, rooting among the graves and rubbish heaps of modernity, are fitting heirs of the humanism, rationalism and science, which in an impious effort to conquer nature and to abolish hunger and misery, succeeded only in destroying themselves and their votaries. The religion of Belial merely recognizes and regularizes the triumph of the evil principle that was made inevitable by the diabolically inspired delusion of progress.

Perhaps the satirical purpose explains why Mr. Huxley saw fit to include in his fantasy a romantic love theme after the characteristic Hollywood formula and to provide for the ultimate escape of Dr. Poole in the company of an only slightly monstrous native girl named Loola, who exhibits atavistic tendencies toward compassion and monogamy. It may also explain why, after a rather clumsy introduction, he chose the narrative form of a script for a technicolor movie. Whatever the reason, he was badly persuaded; for the reader wearies quickly of its studied incoherencies. Not even Mr. Huxley's industry at exuberant inventions—for example his allusion to a book called The Last Days of Coney Island—saves his novel from falling into the "regimented schizophrenia" against which he rages. Besides, his imaginative reserves, like the natural resources whose depletion he bewails, appear to be wearing somewhat thin.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph And Stewart Alsop

The Phony Tomato

AT THE MOSCOW Scientific Congress after the war, a number of foreign scientists requested permission to visit the laboratories of the celebrated Soviet agricultural biologist, academician T. D. Lysenco. The permission was graciously granted, and the party headed by Dr. Julian Huxley, presented themselves at Lysenko's institute at the appointed hour.

Lysenko's assistants met them with profuse apologies. The laboratories of the great academician, it appeared, were so secret that they were never, never, never visited by anyone at all. But the academician would give a lecture. In the lecture hall, therefore, the foreigners listened in bewilderment for an hour or more, while academician Lysenko thundered against the errors of "foreign bourgeois genetics," and grew lyrical over the miracles of "Marxist-Stalinist genetics."

It had never occurred to the foreign scientists that scientific theory was tinctured with politics. They were still more astonished because the system of plant breeding described by academician Lysenko flew flat in the face of every established principle of biology. But at the grand climax, the academician brandished before their eyes the living proof of his words. It was a bowl of tomatoes, each one bigger than a cantaloupe, all produced without a deviation from the Marxist-Stalinist line.

There was a loud round of applause, led by the academician's assistants, and the meeting dissolved into a sociable reception. Rather inefficiently, perhaps, the bowl of Marxist-Stalinist tomatoes was left, in plain sight, on a table. A foreign scientist slipped one of the monstrous vegetables into his overcoat pocket. The Marxist-Stalinist tomato proved to be made of purest wax.

THIS LITTLE EPISODE, which is completely authentic, hides a gigantic tragedy beneath its trivially comic surface. During the past fortnight, while the rest of the world has anxiously followed the Berlin crisis, "Pravda's" Moscow readers have been chiefly preoccupied with a noisy struggle between biologists. A number of the genuinely brilliant and scientific Russian biologists, such as A. R. Zhebrak, I. Schmalhauzen and B. M. Zavadovsky, were under bitter attack for "foreign bourgeois deviations." The attacker was the great academician, Lysenko, of the waxen tomato.

The dispute was settled in Lysenko's favor a few days ago, by the august central committee of the Soviet Communist Party. Lysenko's colleagues were then unanimously converted to "Marxist-Stalinist genetics," and ate huge meals of dirt to save their hides. And the virtual dictator of all Soviet biological studies is now this pompous scientific fraud, Lysenko, a man no better than the famous injection-giving Dr. Theodor Morell, whom Hitler planned to make the ruler of the once great empire of German medicine after the expected Nazi victory.

The tragedy, of course, lies in the plight of able and devoted men like Zhebrak (known to Americans as the scientific member of the Russian U. N. delegation at San Francisco). They are now punished for their services to science and their country by being confided to the tender mercies of an angry quack who hates them for having dared to challenge his theories of wax tomato breeding. It is the shocking story of Soviet music and the other arts all over again.

THE STORY HAS two kinds of significance, moreover. In the vital field of experimentation in nuclear physics, there are now excellent reasons to believe that the Russian atomic scientists are regarded with such suspicion and are so cabined and confined that they have derived no benefit whatever from their captive German colleagues. This is of a piece with the contempt shown for the better Russian biologists and other scientific workers who do not play the political game.

And behind all this, finally, there is a process which has long been watched by foreign scientific experts and intelligence officers. The heavy hand of the police state, forbidding all freedom of inquiry, reaching into every research institution, encouraging not the good workman but the facile flatterer and office politician, is gradually crushing down all serious intellectual activity. Creative scientific thought is the source of modern technics. Modern technics are the basis of the modern industrial state. Thus, if creative thought is to be crushed out, the state will eventually see its own technical and industrial and military strength, all its achievement and its purpose, gradually weakening and crumbling away.

This is to be time's revenge upon the policemen. Meanwhile, it is amusing to remember that the secret policemen who are stationed in every laboratory and other Soviet institute, must have known very well that Lysenko's Marxist-Stalinist tomatoes were phony.

Pastor Asks if Use of A-Bomb Was Due to Jap Death Threat

London, Aug. 22 (AP).—A British clergyman today raised the question whether atomic bombs were dropped on Japan because of a reported Tokyo threat to massacre war prisoners in retaliation for any invasion.

The Rev. Percival Gough, rector of the Acton, West London, Church, said the 1948 Crockford's Clerical Directory, to be published this week, calls on those who know the answer to speak out. The directory is an Oxford University press publication listing clergymen of the Church of England.

During his sermon, the minister quoted the directory as follows:

"We have seen it stated that when the Japanese saw that defeat had become inevitable, they informed His Majesty's Government and the Government of the United States through a neutral power that if a landing were attempted on any part of their territory the prisoners of war in their hands would be massacred to the last man.

"There must be a few people both here and in America who really know whether this is true or not. We think that the time for them to speak has now come."

(Washington records showed that President Truman said at the time of the atomic bomb attack on Hiroshima in August, 1945, that the bomb was dropped "in order to shorten the agony of war, in order to save the lives of thousands and thousands of young Americans.

(Gen. Carl A. Spaatz, then commander of the Strategic Air Forces in the Pacific, said that if he had had the bomb in Europe, "it would have shortened the war six to eight months.")

Boston Archbishop Praises Marshall Plan

Paris, Aug. 22 (U.P.).—The Most Rev. Richard J. Cushing, Archbishop of Boston, praised the Marshall Plan today as one plan to which the Communists and "other subversive elements" have no answer.

Cushing spoke to a group of Catholic social workers here. Earlier he preached a sermon at Notre Dame Cathedral.

He is the leader of a group of pilgrims bound for Lourdes and later for Italy, where they will have an audience with the Pope. They are scheduled to leave Paris at 6 a. m. tomorrow.

Huks' Red Chief Not Underground, Merely 'in Field'

Manila, Aug. 22 (AP).—Luis Taruc, Communist chief of the Hukbalahap peasant guerillas, sent word to President Quirino today that he had not gone underground but was merely "in the field," advising his men to keep the peace.

The government recently extended amnesty to Taruc and his 50,000 followers, but last week's deadline for surrender of their arms passed without result. Taruc vanished from Manila.

At the same time Taruc was sending his reassuring letter to President Quirino today, Gov. Jose B. Lingad of Pampanga Province charged that Taruc had purposely caused the amnesty to fail.

In a statement he said Taruc had gained $8500 in back pay as a congressman, had been accorded a seat in Congress, and had accomplished the removal of constabulary commanders and disarming of civilian guards without making good on his side of the bargain.

Taruc, he asserted, was trying to perpetuate unrest until a Soviet state could be achieved.

The governor said 11 persons had been killed in his province in "Huk" disorders in the past week.

Small Business Group Plans Midwest Hearings

The House Small Business Committee announced yesterday it will hold hearings in a dozen Midwestern cities this fall on complaints of the "little men" of the business world.

It plans to investigate the plight of independent service station operators, theater owners, retail food dealers, and small shoe repair shops, and any other field in which small businessmen feel they are being squeezed out by "monopolistic" trade practices.

Chairman Ploeser (R., Mo.) said similar hearings will be conducted in the East and Far West next year.

APRA Accused Of Revolt Plans By Peru Regime

Lima, Peru, Aug. 22 (U.P.).—The government today accused the moderate leftist People's Party (APRA) of plotting armed revolt, and blamed the powerful political organization for the 11-day-old Peruvian rail strike.

Simultaneously, President Jose Luis Bustamante Rivero set April 25, 1949, as the opening date of the constituent assembly which will attempt to settle the "legislators' strike" which has kept Peru without a congress for the past two years.

Apra leader Raul Haya de la Torre denied the charges, saying his party is a "majority, but not an armed majority." Haya de la Torre declared that Apra has been "guilty of no violence and no illegal acts."

The Aprista leader accused the government of trying to provoke violence as an excuse for proclaiming martial law.

Adm. Conolly Praises Pakistan's New Navy

Karachi, Pakistan, Aug. 22 (AP).—United States Admiral Richard L. Conolly congratulated Pakistan today on the progress of her navy in the short history of the new dominion.

Leading a good-will American naval force into Karachi, Conolly said he was much impressed by the officers and men of the new navy.

Conolly spoke at a news conference aboard the heavy cruiser Toledo, his flagship. Other ships in the force are the destroyers Chevalier and Higbee.

Romanians Here to Observe Fall of Nazi Regime Today

By Elizabeth Maguire
Post Reporter

Today is the anniversary of the overthrow of the Nazi regime in Rumania. The man who engineered the volte face of the Romanians against the Nazis on August 23, 1944, was Julius Maniu. He is now in jail, put there by the Communist government which today is celebrating the anniversary of his great victory.

A reception will be held at the Romanian Legation in honor of the day but not the man, between 6 and 8 p. m. today.

Julius Maniu, at the time of the overthrow of the Nazis, was leader of Romania's largest political party, the National Peasant Party. He has since been decreed a traitor of his country by Anna Pauker, Romanian secretary of state and Communist dictator. She says he sold out his country to Great Britain and the United States.

Last Friday a group of American women of Romanian descent, dressed in Romanian costume, called on Llewellyn Thompson, deputy director for European Affairs at the State Department. Several of them said their relatives in Romania lived under conditions of forced labor, abduction and constant fear.

They presented a memorandum asking that the United States withdraw its recognition of the Groza government, since the United States, the memorandum declared, is a party to the Moscow Agreement, guaranteeing Romania's independence and territorial integrity, and the Groza government, the memorandum said, represents none else but the Politburo of Moscow.

Mrs. Alexandre Cretzianu, wife of the former Romanian Minister to Turkey, entertained the women at tea at her home on Saturday. Mrs. Cretzianu is the daughter of the late Prince Stirbey. The Stirbeys were the ruling princes of Romania before the Kingdom of Romania was installed by King Carol I.

A member of a former government of Romania, who was at the tea, said everywhere he went people asked him about Anna Pauker. He described her as large, age about 55, having Mongol features. She dresses expensively, he said, and is a political fanatic.

New German Drug Found Useful in Surgery, Asthma

By the United Press

The Commerce Department's Office of Technical Services yesterday published a report on experiments with a new German drug called pervitin which is similar to adrenaline and benzedrine.

According to the 10-page document, written by Dr. Edmunt Tietzen, German tests of the drug during the war showed that it may be useful in several fields.

"Favorable conclusions" were reached on the usefulness of pervitin for wakening patients from narcotics, for fighting collapse after surgical operations, for prolonging the effect of morphine, and for relief of symptoms associated with hay-fever and asthma. The report warned, however, that use of pervitin might lead to "addiction problems similar to those encountered with morphine and cocaine."

Chiang Warns Economic Lawbreakers on Currency

Nanking, Aug. 22 (AP).—On the eve of issuing China's new currency, President Chiang Kai-shek tonight warned economic lawbreakers they would be prosecuted for high treason as enemies of the nation.

The new "gold yuan," with a fixed rate of four to the United States dollar and one to three million of the old Chinese national currency, is due to go into general circulation Monday.

Chiang issued his statement through Hollington Tong, government spokesman.

Inflation Acknowledged

He acknowledged the old money had "reached a stage of malignant inflation," but blamed the Communist Fifth Column for the dilemma. "It should be realized," he said, that progress in both national reconstruction and economics will be predicated on a stable currency.

"Therefore, I hope that patriotic citizens will lend their unanimous support to the new monetary system."

He warned that "I am firmly resolved that the four sets of financial and economic regulations shall be enforced to the letter."

In China this can mean the death sentence.

The regulations forbid possession of gold, silver or foreign money, hoarding and black market deals, and require the registration of overseas assets.

Digressing to lash out against Communist infiltration of universities, Chiang said, "The government simply cannot and will not sit back and watch this devastating force spread among our youth and do nothing about it."

A roundup of suspected Communists among student bodies is currently in progress.

Russians Take Credit For German Grain

Berlin, Aug. 22 (U.P.).—Grain gathered on German farms in the Soviet zone is being shipped here with a "grown in Russia" label, the British licensed news agency DPD reported today.

The news agency said that a trainload of grain collected on farms near Berlin was sent to Dresden, near the Czechoslovak border of the Soviet zone. There Russian officers took German seals off the cars and replaced them with seals bearing the letters "USSR."

Then the train was sent back to Berlin, to be hailed as "a grain train from the Soviet Union," DPD said.

SHARKSKIN IS A NAME!

Some imaginative person named this beautiful suit-material "nailhead sharkskin." Both words are poetically descriptive but to us, are entirely inadequate. They suggest the toughness of sharkskin. They intimate the appeal of the tiny squared-off pattern, but there is no hint in the name of the smart, clean-cut wearability of the material.

We prefer to think of it as a long-wearing, good-looking suit of clothes. (Incidentally, the price is extraordinary in these times).

Council of Churches Opening Marked

The opening of the World Council of Churches in Amsterdam, Holland, yesterday was marked with prayers and special services in many Washington Protestant churches.

Several joined churches across the Nation in the hourly tolling of church bells to announce the beginning of the assembly, which brings together representatives of 148 denominations to form the World Council.

At the First Baptist Church, 16th and O sts. nw., the Rev. R. Edward Dowdy, associate minister, hailed the opening of the council as a "day of destiny."

"Many people," he said, "are frankly more hopeful for the ultimate outcome of this meeting than for the United Nations.

"What is happening today in Amsterdam symbolizes the essential oneness of the millions who are called Christian on every continent. There is no desire to establish a super-church; nor to set up an ecclesiastical authority."

Speaking of the theme of the sessions, "Man's Disorder and God's Design," he stated that if the council deals realistically with God's design, "it will call all of us to repent of this folly of war and turn indeed to the way of Christ."

"If it gets lost in the multitude of theological differences which separate Christians today, then this day of destiny will become a day of doom," Mr. Doudy said.

"Let us pray that God's spirit will so direct the men and women of Amsterdam that out of the desperate needs of our time, Christianity may spring again into its creative, life-changing power," he concluded.

At Albright Memorial Evangelical and Reformed Church, 4th and Rittenhouse sts. nw., the Rev. George E. Schnabel called the Amsterdam meeting the most significant religious event in hundreds of years.

He urged the congregation to "brush through the cobwebs of our narrow denominationalism and grasp with earnest zeal the great and abiding truths of our oneness with Jesus Christ."

Sectarianism will always exist, he said, but asserted that the important thing is that there is now under way a movement toward unity.

The World Council, with representatives of almost every race, nation and denomination, demonstrates that our differences are minor and our oneness is a reality, he said.

"Amsterdam establishes a world pattern worthy of emulation by the statesmen and politicians of the world," he concluded.

N. Y. Socialite Still Plans to Enter Convent

New York, Aug. 22 (AP).—A 19-year-old debutante flew back from a tour of Europe tonight and announced to her family that she still wants to enter a convent.

A New York debut, a winter of parties among the city's young socialites, and the two-month tour abroad failed to shake the determination of pretty, blonde Constance Murray.

She will enter the Convent of the Holy Child in New Sharon, Pa., on September 15 to begin her novitiate.

The last-season debutante's plan was revealed tonight by her mother, Mrs. John F. Murray, at their Long Island home in Southampton.

Constance is the daughter of a late member of the Stock Exchange, and granddaughter of the late Thomas Edward Murray, official of the New York Edison Co. and an inventor.

Constance is one of five Murray sisters, one of whom is the wife of Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt.

The young socialite attended the Convent of the Holy Child in Suffern, N. Y., and has wanted to be a nun since she was 14.

"She's extremely happy about it—it will be realizing a dream she's had for so many years. We're all very happy about it," her mother said tonight.

Ban on Religion Study in Schools Protested by Japs

Tokyo, Aug. 22 (AP).—A ban on religious education in public schools has roused a storm among teachers, parents and pupils.

The Education Ministry's orders include prohibition against public school groups visiting shrines and temples.

Since almost all famous places in Japan are linked with a shrine of some sort, teachers say this hampers their history classes.

They also say literal application would prevent even the favorite sport of climbing Mt. Fuji.

Reds on Siam Border

Singapore, Aug. 22 (AP).—The Singapore newspaper Straits Times said today in a dispatch from Kota Bharu, capital of Kelantan State, that armed Chinese Communist bands of 50 to 400 each are reported campaigning just across the border between Siam and Malaya.

Haymaker of Barber, 76, Foils Armed Holdup; Suspect Taken

By Harry Goodwin—The Washington Post

Bert Smith, who runs a barber shop at 21 15th st. se., may be 76 and gray-haired, but he still has plenty of fight left when someone tries to take his hard-earned cash—gun or no gun.

Yesterday he told friends at Silas Winston's barber shop at 15 15th st. se. how he foiled a robbery attempt by two young thugs who flashed a loaded automatic at him.

The two men walked into his shop Saturday, Smith said, and began to argue over the $1 price for haircuts. When Smith asked one of the youths whether he wanted a haircut or not, the youth replied, "That's not all I want; this is a stickup, get in the back room."

He pointed a gun at Smith, who calmly grabbed it and let go with a haymaker. "I started swinging like a real prize fighter," Smith said, "the guys got scared and ran."

The pair ran into the street as Pvt. Frank DiBitetto passed by on his way to report for duty at the Thirteenth Precinct. DiBitetto, who was with a civilian friend, chased the two would-be robbers in the friend's car. They caught one of the youths, identified as Ralph T. Rodenbaugh of Arlington, Va., who was charged with attempted armed robbery. Police are looking for the other man, believed to be a young Army deserter.

Christianity Called Best Hope Of Man at World Conference

recent years in the realm of sacrifice and disaster" and added:

"My vivid contact with pain and tragedy of recent years have flooded with vivid meaning the Cross of Christ. I recognize as never before why Christ found it necessary to go to the Cross."

Movement Oiginated in U. S.

Bishop Yngve Brilioth of Vaxjo, Sweden, traces the history of the World Council of Churches, which had its inception when the conferences of Oxford and Edinburgh approved the report of a committee which had worked out the idea.

The council was conceived as a common organization within which the two movements—faith and order, life and work—would continue their activities. Bishop Brilioth said that faith and order—the older of the two—owe their origin to the Episcopal Church in America.

The Rev. Daniel T. Niles of Ceylon, leader of the World Christian Student Federation and chairman of the council's youth department, described the present world as one in which the Christian faith is dispossessed of its hold on the mores of the people.

"It is a world that has sought to destroy the church, and now has set the church the task of building peace without providing it with the material either of repentance or of faith," he said.

He urged world church leaders to meet their responsibility.

The Russians are not represented here among the bearded and robed hierarchy of the orthodox church, but they are discussed in council circles. Press officers make a point of the representation here from "behind the iron curtain" outside the Soviet Union itself.

John Foster Dulles, a delegate to the assembly and adviser to Republican Presidential Candidate Thomas E. Dewey, expressed regret over the absence of Russian ecclesiastics from the meeting.

Press Charter 'Emasculated'

Geneva, Switzerland, Aug. 22 (U.P.).—The Convention of Freedom of Information, as adopted by the Human Rights Committee of the United Nations Economic and Social Council, is an "emasculated" version of the original document drawn up last April, American delegates said today.

The original was written here at a United Nations conference attended by more than 50 nations. It concerns the gathering and international transmission of news.

The 18-member Human Rights Committee voted late yesterday for an amended version of the convention after an all-day procedural wrangle. The vote was 9 in favor, 3 against and 4 abstentions. Brazil and Chile were absent. Russia, Poland and Byelorussia voted against the measure. Canada, Australia, New Zealand and Lebanon abstained.

Those who voted for the convention were the United States, Britain, China, France, Denmark, The Netherlands, Peru, Turkey and Venezuela.

Because of an East-West deadlock, the committee will refer the amended convention, along with two others on freedom of information, to the U. N. General Assembly in Paris without recommendation.

The main opposition came from Russia's A. P. Pavlov, who in one morning spoke 27 times against a single amendment. But there was a marked lack of enthusiasm for American principles of "free flow of information" from other delegates as well, including Colombia and Mexico.

Chemical Society To Meet Aug. 30

The Eastern session of the American Chemical Society will hold its 114th annual meeting here from August 30 to September 3.

The $1000 Paul-Lewis Laboratories Award in Enzyme Chemistry will be presented to Dr. Albert L. Lehninger, professor of biochemistry at the University of Chicago, at a meeting of the society August 30 in the Hotel Statler. Lehninger, who is 31, will receive the award for his research on the chemistry and metabolism of fatty acids.

Canon Urges All Christian Faiths to Unite

Leaders of Roman Catholicism, Protestantism, and Eastern Orthodoxy must throw all of their strength into achieving Christian unity "not at all costs, but at all risks," the Rev. George J. Cleaveland declared yesterday.

The Episcopalian clergyman, who is canon librarian of the Washington Cathedral, urged that "Protestantism surrender some of its individualism and Rome her absolutism" so that the world may again see a "true Catholicism."

He spoke at the cathedral in connection with the opening of the first assembly of the World Council of Churches in Amsterdam, Holland.

Unity Not Uniformity

Leaders and members of Roman Catholicism, Protestantism, and Eastern Orthodoxy should acknowledge that the living are not responsible for "the sins, errors, abuses, tyrannies and negligences of the past," he asserted.

"But they are responsible under God and before God for throwing all their strength into the reunion of the broken fellowship of Christians," he said.

Unity is not uniformity; uniformity has never characterized the church in any age, and does not exist in any part of the church today, he said. He pointed out that in unity there may be diversity without sectarianism.

"There must be unity without absorption and without dominance of brethren by brethren," Canon Cleaveland said.

Appeals to Catholic Church

The World Council of Churches, he stated, is a movement on the part of non-Romanism in the direction of a united church. The Roman Catholic Church declined invitations to participate with 150 Protestant and Orthodox churches in the World Council, but has sent observers to the meetings.

Canon Cleaveland called upon Rome to "throw aside her exclusiveness," to let her unofficial observers attend future Councils as accredited delegates with authority to commit her to Christian service with her brethren "for the sake of Christ, the Lord and Savior of both Roman Catholicism, Protestant and Conciliar Catholicism."

"Unity, beginning at Amsterdam today, is far from complete," he stated, adding that it needs leadership, strengthening, and power.

Urges Conciliations on Anglicans

"Let Anglicans admit without reservation our fellow members of the reformed churches to be true Christians in true churches having a true ministry," he urged.

The unity of the church can be greatly advanced, he said, if the Roman Catholic Church will "cast aside her attitude of aloofness and in a spirit of sincere humility and Christian earnestness, declare the reality in her sight of the Christian status of her separated brethren."

The assembling of the churches in Amsterdam is a call from God to augment and implement the effort toward unity which is "a vital, urgent necessity," Cleaveland said.

Dr. Buehler Hanged For Nazi War Crimes

Warsaw, Aug. 22 (AP).—Dr. Joseph Buehler, 44, chief of administration under the Nazis' wartime general government for Poland, has been hanged at Krakow for war crimes, it was announced today.

The supreme national tribunal convicted Buehler July 10 of engineering the killing of more than two million Jews and deportation of almost two million Poles. His wife and two children live in Germany.

Rev. Miers Opposes Ministerial Group; Calls Draft 'Attempt to Protect Liberty'

The Rev. James H. Miers, pastor of Fourth Presbyterian Church, 13th and Fairmount sts. nw., yesterday countered opposition of some ministers to the draft by calling the draft an "honest attempt" to protect our liberties.

Dr. Miers' sermon was in reply to a group of clergymen who had urged yesterday be observed as a day of "mourning and repentance" in protest against the new Selective Service.

"I cannot mourn because an honest attempt is being made to protect our liberties," he said. "I might as well pray for the abolition of the police force and detectives who ferret out crime."

Asserting that we are living in a time of crisis, he said the draft came after careful consideration in the House and Senate and is our answer to this world crisis.

The draft puts Russia on notice he said, that we will not let the world go to her by default.

Dr. Miers also noted that one group of clergymen had urged young men to refuse to register for the draft. He asserted that he was not in sympathy with anyone who advocated resistance to the laws of the United States.

If we disapprove of the draft, he said, we have an election year and can turn out everyone who voted for it. God, he stated, has ordained the civil powers.

"Let us, therefore, be obedient to our civil rulers and to the laws of our country which are designed to protect us in the exercise of our liberties," he concluded. "We must rely upon God, without whose blessing and guidance neither a draft law nor the lack of a draft law could preserve our liberties."

Dulles Won't See Foreign Envoys At Church Parley

Amsterdam, Aug. 22 (AP).—John Foster Dulles, Republican Party adviser on American foreign policy said today some foreign emissaries had intimated they want secret talks with him.

Here as a Presbyterian lay delegate to the assembly of the World Council of Churches, Dulles said he is not seeing any of them. He declined to tell newsmen the names of the persons who approached him or say what country or countries they came from.

At the same time, he said he will speak Tuesday on the American attitude toward peace. He added that politics alone can never achieve peace; "moral forces of the world are basically more powerful," he added.

A late dispatch from The Hague said Lewis W. Douglas, U. S. Ambassador to London, had arranged to see Dulles in Amsterdam Tuesday. The dispatch said there was speculation that the Moscow negotiations over the Berlin blockade would be discussed.

Dulles said he expects to leave for New York Wednesday night.

Randolph to Speak At Exchange Club

Jennings Randolph, assistant to the president of Capital Airlines and former Congressman from West Virginia, will address the Exchange Club Tuesday on "Air Force for World Peace." The luncheon meeting will be held at 12:15 p. m. in the Congressional Room of the Willard Hotel.

Caracas, Venezuela, Aug. 22 (U.P.).—A Venezuelan DC-3 freight plane has been missing since last night in northwestern Venezuela with three crewmen and a load of cargo, it was announced today.

Egypt Seeks U. N. Move to Geneva

Cairo, Aug. 22 (AP).—A reliable source said tonight the Egyptian government has asked other Arab states to join in drafting a unified policy concerning the permanent location of United Nations headquarters.

The source said the Arab states, Greece, Iran, India and China would propose at the forthcoming United Nations' General Assembly session in Paris, that the U. N. transfer its headquarters permanently to Geneva, Switzerland.

(The General Assembly voted two years ago to retain New York as headquarters city of the U. N. The United States Congress recently voted the U. N. a 65-million-dollar loan for construction of its New York home. Work is scheduled to begin in two weeks.)

Spiritual Power Envisioned As Basis of a Livable World

The Rev. Chesteen Smith, acting executive secretary of the Washington Federation of Churches, spoke at Wesley Methodist Church, Connecticut ave. and Jocelyn sts. nw, yesterday for the Rev. C. Stanley Lowell, pastor, on vacation.

He called for use of spiritual power to produce a peaceful and livable world, pointing out that the Nation had attempted this through military power—with the result devastated lands and starving people.

The United Nations, declared the speaker, even now is being threatened by "selfish greed."

Speaking of the contributions of America to relieve the distress of the suffering world, Dr. Smith noted that our attempts have been branded power politics and imperialism.

"It is time we now gave our thoughts and energies to trying out Christian power," he asserted. Even scientists have stated that the next great development after the atomic bomb will be the discovery of spiritual power, he declared.

This development and use of spiritual power is the high mission of the church, Dr. Smith pointed out.

The brotherhood which will come from this release of spiritual power is necessary if we are to meet the social issues of the day, for spiritual power is the divine way of leavening human society by working through human souls, he concluded.

CIO Asks Farmers To Help Better Lot

By the United Press

The Congress of Industrial Organizations yesterday called for close farm-labor cooperation in a drive for better living conditions.

In a pamphlet addressed "to the farmer from his customers," the CIO said if such cooperation is made "a real force in America . . . we will be able to realize the promise of a truly better tomorrow for people everywhere."

"It is not enough for labor to continue by itself to strive for a better life for workers; nor for farmers by themselves to try to improve their lot," it said. "Our problems and solutions are the same."

The pamphlet, prepared by the CIO's research and education department, was in the form of a composite "letter to Dad" from the millions of one-time youths who moved to the cities for jobs in industry.

It analyzes problems confronting both labor and farmers and warned that both will suffer unless inflationary pressures are checked before the bubble bursts and the Nation finds itself "spinning dizzily in a depression spiral."

"Then the farmer would burn corn again for fuel and hold penny foreclosure sales," it said. "Veterans would set up apple stands and go on relief."

The pamphlet said the amount paid labor is of primary importance to farmers since their "food customers come from the millions, not from the millionaires."

Her Broken Nap

Ceiling's Fall Rude Alarm For Sleeper

The Washington Post
MRS. AUDREY JOHNSTON
Ceiling Fell on Her

Mrs. Audrey Johnston, 23, office clerk, told police she awoke from a nap yesterday with a feeling "the whole house was falling in on me."

Not quite, police said; only to the extent of "some 30 to 40 pounds of ceiling plaster.

The frightened woman telephoned her husband, Pvt. Charles Johnson, fireman of No. 2 Engine Company, who notified Fire Alarm Headquarters. Engine Company No. 13 was sent to the home, at 712 G st. ne., and found no fire.

Mrs. Johnston, who said she was "paralyzed with fear" at the time of the accident, later complained of "backache" and was treated by a private physician.

Fire Chief Questions Eerie Fires

Macomb, Ill., Aug. 22 (U.P.).—Fire Chief Fred Wilson said today he believed a "plain old match" will turn out to be the cause of the mystery fires that burned down Charlie Willey's farm buildings.

"This thing isn't supernatural," Wilson declared. "Something else is going on."

He and Deputy State Fire Marshal John Burgard trekked out to the Willey farm today to see if there had been any more fires. They ran into crowds of Sunday curious flocking to the place.

"There weren't any fires," Wilson said, "and I don't think there will be as long as there are people around, if you know what I mean."

Wilson said the investigation would include lie detector tests, if necessary. But he said the Willeys were "clean—they didn't have anything to do with this."

"It's a funny thing that those fires don't start when we're around watching for them," he said.

AAA to Take Boy Safety Officers On Trip for Week

Four bus loads of American Automobile Association School Safety Patrol officers leave today at 8:30 a. m. for a week's camping and traffic safety training at Camp Ernest W. Brown, Scotland, Md.

George R. Hammond, Safety and education director for the American Automobile Association's District division, announced yesterday that 205 boys from the District, Virginia and Maryland will leave from the Fifth Precinct, 5th and E sts. se., to participate in the association's ninth annual summer encampment. They will return the evening of August 30.

The other half of the group attending this summer's encampment leaves by bus for Camp Brown on August 30, to return September 6, Hammond said.

Gandhi's Poverty Made Indians Rich, Dr. Tucker Says

The late Mohandas K. Gandhi, Indian spiritual leader, "dedicated his own life to poverty, but brought great riches to the people of India by so doing," Dr. Boyd Tucker, former Army chaplain, told 75 members of the International Crossroads Breakfast Club yesterday.

Dr. Tucker, world traveler, who taught religion in Indian schools for 20 years and was personally acquainted with Gandhi, addressed the group in the Central YMCA.

Man's House Still His Castle, Snoring Legal in Los Angeles

Los Angeles, Aug. 22 (AP).—Is it illegal to snore if it keeps your neighbors awake?

This weighty problem was handed to Deputy City Prosecutor Byron Gentry by Mr. and Mrs. Wilson E. Carr. The Carrs complained a neighbor in their apartment house snored so loudly it constituted disturbance of the peace.

After due consideration Gentry concluded a man's house is still his castle as far as snoring is concerned; it's perfectly lawful. His lengthy opinion included these salient points:

"In the instant case, the evidence tends at least toward the conclusion that the noise complained of is both loud and unusual; one might even say tumultuous.

"We must, therefore, endeavor to determine whether it is malicious and willful; we think it is not. It would appear to be a complex combination of respiratory noises over which the unconscious perpetrator could not possibly exercise any degree of control.

"Therefore, we must conclude, at least for the present, that a private citizen may snore with immunity in his own home, even though he may be in possession of unusual and exceptional natural ability in that particular field."

U. S. Unionists Tour Russia Making Notes

Moscow, Aug. 22 (NYHT.).—A four-man delegation is touring Moscow for Harry Bridges' International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union. They said today they are filling notebooks with observations which they hope will be eye-openers for American workers.

The four left San Francisco July 8, and passed through France, Italy, Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia and Poland, before arriving in Moscow Wednesday. They are to leave for Finland tomorrow via Leningrad, after having covered, they said, all the important political, economic, and social phases of life in the Soviet Union.

They say their program is to learn whether there is religious freedom, inquire into charges that trade unionism is not free and that there is no right to strike, speak and organize; study the rights of small businessmen as distinguished from corporations; study the one-party system and see if it works like the political systems of American trade unions; determine whether the country is democratic, and learn whether there is freedom of speech, press and assembly.

In the past four days the men told this correspondent they covered the following ground: the Moscow subway (they liked it), The Stalin automobile plant (they confirmed that it is turning out machines at a regular rate.) A church (which satisfied them there is religious worship in Russia).

Tomorrow they will tour the Kremlin grounds, where they will see the palace of the Supreme Soviet and the Kremlin Museum containing relics of Czarist days. By contrasting the two, they said, they will be able to make a historical study of the changes which have taken place under the Communists.

When they leave Moscow, they said, they will have a clear picture of life in the Soviet Union, and will be able to reply to the slanderous charges, which they said are being made against Russia by American politicians and newspapers.

Unions Chief NLRB Target

that a union was guilty of a secondary boycott (an attack on an employer by trying to force other employers not to do business with him). Another was a board approval of an agreement already made between a union and a company, under which the union agreed to reimburse the money paid for a "featherbedding" case (for services not performed).

The third and by far the most important order came this week.

The board found that Seamen's hiring halls operated on the Great Lakes by the CIO National Maritime Union are illegal, and ordered the union to stop insisting on their continuation.

All this is aside from numerous other activities under the Taft-Hartley law, such as plant elections.

The NLRB, during the 10 months up until July 1, conducted 17,476 elections to determine whether employes wanted the union shop. They voted yes in 17,130 elections and no in 346.

Building Employes Not NLRB Matter

By the United Press

The National Labor Relations Board ruled yesterday that the Taft-Hartley Act does not give it jurisdiction over maintenance employes in a general office building even though the tenants are engaged in interstate commerce.

It held that operation of the building is essentially "local in character" and dismissed a petition for an election to determine whether 21 employes of the Railway Exchange building, Kansas City, Mo., wish to unseat the Building Service Employes Union (AFL) as their bargaining representative.

Work Stoppage Ordered On San Francisco Docks

San Francisco, Aug. 22 (AP).—Another waterfront work stoppage was called for 6 p. m., Tuesday night by the CIO longshoremen today.

Longshore crews and ships clerks were ordered to remain off the job from 6 p. m. Tuesday to 6 p. m. Wednesday so that all may attend a meeting called to discuss the deadlocked contract negotiations.

An employer spokesman termed it "no coincidence" that one large passenger ship was due to sail and another to dock during the 24-hour period. James Kearney, head of Longshoremens' Local 10, said emergency gangs would be provided for these jobs.

Gibson Named to Head Fairfax Chest Unit

The Fairfax County Community Chest yesterday announced appointment of Lytton Gibson, Falls Church attorney and assistant Commonwealth's attorney for the county, as chairman of the business unit for the fall fund campaign.

County General Chairman Edward K. Uhler, who also serves on the federation budget committee, said strong emphasis will be placed on the business unit's work this year, since only 19 per cent of the small business firms in Greater Washington participated in the 1947 drive.

'Miss Washington' To Be Picked at Theater Tonight

Eleven pretty, talented and hopeful finalists will compete for the title of "Miss Greater Washington" at 9:30 p. m. today on the stage of the Capitol Theater.

The winner, who will be chosen for her talent and personality, as well as face and figure, will represent Washington at the "Miss America" contest in September at Atlantic City.

She will also receive a $3500 Kaiser-Frazer automobile, a fur jacket, diamond ring, watch and wardrobe in ceremonies at Griffith Stadium on Tuesday night. The contest is sponsored by radio station WWDC.

Caddie Arrested On Charges of Rape, Robbery

Raymond Vincent Johnson, 19, of 3232 13th st. nw., described as a caddie at the Indian Spring, Md. golf course, was charged last night with rape and robbery of a 22-year-old woman.

Park Police Detective Charles P. Apfelbeck said the woman told him Johnson threatened her with a penknife at 15th and U sts. nw., early yesterday morning, and forced her to go with him to the Tidal Basin.

Police said she told them that Johnson later raped her twice and then forced her to go with him to the Mutual Ice Co. bunkhouse in the 1100 block of North Henry st., Alexandria, where he removed her shoes and skirt "so she couldn't escape him." Another man in the bunkhouse relayed her call to police, she said. She also charged that Johnson took her pocketbook which police said contained less than a $1.

Valli's in It

'Pagliacci' Film at Little SlightlyRelatedtoOpera

By Sonia Stein

BEFORE you run lickety split to the Little Theater to see "Laugh, Pagliacci," be forewarned on two points. One: This is not a film version of the opera, "Pagliacci." Two: Although this picture stars the same Valli whose face currently is sending American men into howls of appreciation, she doesn't look much like the Valli of "The Paradine Case."

This Italian film (with English subtitles up to substandard) came into the Little abruptly Saturday to replace "Meet Me at Dawn" which evidently wasn't drawing enough customers to keep the seats dusted.

"Laugh, Pagliacci" makes good use of the score from Leoncavallo's opera, but its chief duty is to tell the tale—and a highly fictitious one, I imagine—of how the composer happened to write it.

As for Alida Valli, she is a sweet little ingenue in this picture and her kitten-eyed face is not treated to the superb photography accorded Mrs. Paradine. Not that she isn't pretty in this. Never fear.

Paolo Hoerbriger takes the acting honors as Canio, the unhappy clown, whose life is set to music by Leoncavallo. Singing honors go to Beniamino Gigli who used to air his bel canto on the stage of the Metropolitan Opera before his return to Italy.

20 Years Later

THE story in a paragraph or ten is this: A clown, convicted of murdering his unfaithful wife and her lover, is paroled after 20 years' imprisonment. Seeking his daughter, now 23, to tell her his story and beg forgiveness, he goes to the home of the wealthy woman who has adopted Guilia.

Frantic for fear that the sordid story of her parents will bring unhappiness to Giulia who is that very day celebrating her engagement to a count, the woman asks Leoncavallo to keep old Canio away from his daughter.

The composer, a family friend, takes Canio away but listens sympathetically to his story. Canio realizes that Leoncavallo is the son of the judge who sentenced him, and the composer recalls seeing Canio kill his wife's lover when he was a small child watching the strolling players.

Canio follows Giulia about, inadvertently calling her by her mother's name. By the time Canio is convinced that he would be doing his daughter grave harm in telling her who he is, she has become extremely curious to know what he wants of her, and why he called her Nedda.

When Leoncavallo presents his opera based on Canio's unhappy crimes of passion, the old man's presence in the wings reminds Giulia that she has never solved the mystery of who he is, and she becomes upset.

Her foster mother and Canio work out a story to put Giulia's mind at rest. Explaining to the girl that he is the real Pagliacci of the opera, he begs to know if she thinks his wife, of whom she reminds him, would forgive him. Giulia assures him that anyone who loves would understand. Satisfied that his daughter has forgiven him, Canio disappears into the night while Giulia, presumably taken in by the little story, marries her count with a light heart.

Gigli's Singing Superb

ONLY Carlo Romano, who handles the role of Leoncavallo, and Hoerbiger are put to any bother by the script. Both have mobile faces and expressive eyes, and Hoerbiger has an actor's feet as well. Valli and the others glide through their relatively simple parts capably enough.

Hoerbiger's performance, and Gigli's singing which is spotted here and there throughout the picture, are worth going to see if you are a connoisseur of these arts.

While the story commits no serious faux pas, it certainly doesn't take you by the throat and shake you, either. "Laugh, Pagliacci," is very acceptable entertainment, but it is not one of those foreign films that sends people dashing around tipping off their friends to see it.

In addition to "The Case of Mrs. Conrad," the March of Time's version of a gall bladder operation, the Little is showing the best "Coming Attractions" film I've seen in a long time. Printed on asbestos, probably, it heralds two enticing (as we say when we mean sexy) films due there soon.

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

THERE WERE SOME pretty warm words tossed around at the last meeting of the American League club owners in early July, aimed mostly at Bill Veeck, president of the Cleveland Indians. Some of them charged him with bare-faced exploitation of the racial issue by signing 40-odd year old Satchel Paige, for more than a decade the pitching sideshow of colored baseball circles.

POVICH

What they told Veeck was that it was unvarnished circus stuff he was injecting into the dignified business of baseball and that the playing standards of the game were being threatened by his attempt to stimulate the Cleveland gate receipts. They didn't like it, but fortunately for Veeck there was nothing they could do about it, and he was backed by League President Will Harridge, and he didn't even bother to recognize the complaints.

And now it is proved that Veeck is guilty as all get-out on at least one of the counts. He stands convicted of stimulating the Cleveland attendance by use of Paige. In three starts, two against the tail-end Chicago White Sox and one against the seventh-place Nats, Paige has attracted a total of 201,000 fans, an average of 67,000 a game.

BUT EVEN MORE SATISFYING to Veech and confounding to his critics is the fact that Paige won all three of his starts—the last a 1-0 shutout over the White Sox. The old guy hasn't lowered any standards at all. He's raised 'em. The same stuff he used to throw and win with in the bush leagues and on gypsy tours with barnstorming clubs is winning him ball games in the majors.

If the Indians win the pennant, and they are threatening to do that, it will be because Satchelfoot has taken up much of the slack occasioned by Bob Feller's poor season. Thus within six months baseball will have witnessed an incredible transformation. Paige, clown-pitcher of the colored leagues, winning the pennant for Cleveland in a year when Bob Feller, supposedly greatest of them all, couldn't.

AND THERE WILL be a salary adjustment if the Indians do win it. Feller was an $87,000 pitcher for the Indians last year and with bonuses based on an attendance in a season when the Indians are breaking all records, his wages this year could hit $100,000. Meanwhile, Paige is working for a $15,000 salary. Satchelfoot can hold out for plenty next season.

Veeck declared at the outset that it was no exploitation job when he signed Paige. He was familiar with Satchel's record. After a special tryout, Lou Boudreau and Hank Greenberg solidly recommended that Paige be signed. And Joe DiMaggio had once said of Satchel, "he's the best pitcher I ever faced." There never was any doubt that Paige knew how to pitch. You don't hang around as long as he did without learning that.

When Veeck gave Paige $15,000 as a starting salary, that was significant. Guys breaking into the majors don't get that kind of money, unless they are widely sought kid phenoms collecting bonuses on future promise. Veeck was paying Paige to win ball games, not to cash in on the crowds he might attract. If he couldn't win, he wouldn't be an attraction, Veeck knew. Well, he's winning and packing 'em in.

AT CLEVELAND, the smallest city in the league with the exception of Washington, Veeck is paying the league's biggest salaries. He has the highest-price pitcher by far in Feller, and the best-paid shortstop by far in Manager Lou Boudreau. And he is getting it all back and more by his smart stewardship of the whole business in a year when his club has been on top or near the top since April.

Probably the most amazing demonstration of Veeck's promotion of the Indians was the day last month when the Cleveland public address system announced: "The special train for Detroit will leave a half hour after the game." On a day when the Tigers were playing at home, Veeck's Indians had attracted a whole trainload of fans from Detroit, three hours away, to watch the Indians perform.

If the Indians do get into the world series, it will be the most profitable series in history Individual shares for each winning player could zoom to as much as $8000 after Veeck gets through packing 84,000 into the big Cleveland Stadium for his home series games. Maybe the league will get to like him.

Nats Lose 8th in Row, 4-1, to Bosox

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Boston, Aug. 22.—The Nats scored a moral victory over the Red Sox today, restricting them to only one home run and a 4-1 victory.

To bottleneck their home-run production, two Nat pitchers walked a dozen of McCarthy's maulers who turned three of the passes into runs.

Only Bobby Doerr was able to hit a home run today, driving his twenty-third over the left field wall in the third inning. His wallop also scored Vern Stephens, who was on base with one of the nine walks starting and losing pitcher Forrest Thompson gave up.

To emphasize Washington's eighth straight loss and to inch his team closer to the league-leading Indians, Dom DiMaggio singled in the final pair of Red Sox scores in the eighth inning when Sid Hudson loaded the bases on three walks.

Bosox Get Only Five Hits

The Sox got only five hits, four off Thompson in seven innings, but they didn't need any more. The Nats made the same number off Mickey Harris, who racked up his sixth success, but could have used many more because Harris walked only two, neither costing him anything.

Eddie Stewart's triple and Mark Christman's infield hit in the fourth deprived Harris of his shutout. Christman pulled a leg muscle on the play and had to leave the game.

The Nats got only one runner as far as second base after that and were also held to a lone single during that span.

Once he settled down, Thompson hurled terrific ball. He issued seven of his nine walks in the first three innings, but three of four Nat double plays helped him over the rougher spots.

The Washington defense couldn't do anything about Doerr's homer except watch it sail over the fence while 26,734 partisans screamed with delight.

IN SHORT—The Nats have now lost 22 out of their last 27 starts and are rapidly moving in the direction of the eighth-place White Sox . . . Doerr hasn't made an error in his last 62 games. Yankee George Stirnweiss holds the modern major league mark with 71 consecutive flawless games . . . The Red Sox hit nine home runs against Nat pitching in the four-game sweep, eight of them going over the mo fence in left, 315 feet away.

Tomorrow the Nats move down into their class—Class B—for an exhibition game against their Bridgeport (Conn.) farmhands . . . The down-trodden Griffs return to Washington Tuesday to face the highfalutin' sixth-place Browns.

Seerey's Homer Wins 2d; Feller Loses 14th

Cleveland, Aug. 22 (AP).—The Cleveland Indians' hold on first place in the American League was sliced to a half game today when last-place Chicago beat them twice, 8 to 1 and 4 to 3.

Former Indian Pat Seerey's two-run homer in the fourth inning was the payoff White Sox blow in the nightcap.

Chicago knocked Bobby Feller out of the box in the sixth inning of the first game, his fourteenth loss.

The Indians took a 1-0 lead in the first inning of the opener, but the White Sox forged ahead in the fourth when they tallied two unearned runs off Feller as a result of errors by Ken Keltner and Larry Doby.

Feller Bows Out

Feller bowed out in the sixth when the Sox registered four runs on five hits, including doubles by Dave Philley and Ralph Hodgin.

Starter Joe Haynes and Howard Judson, who relieved in the sixth kept eight Cleveland hits well scattered. Haynes was credited with the win.

The Indians also took an early lead in the second game. They led 2 to 0 entering the fourth but Chicago came up with four runs, off Gene Bearden in that frame to clinch matters.

The veteran Luke Appling drove in two runs with a double and scored on Seerey's drive into the left field stands.

The Indians allied in the ninth, scoring one run, but Frank Papish came in to end the threat.

Today's crowd of 57,747 boosted the Indians' season total for 58 home games to 1,967,915 paid admissions.

Browns Rout Tigers, 8 to 1; Sixth Loss for Newhouser

Detroit, Aug. 22 (AP).—The St. Louis Browns walloped the Detroit Tigers, 10 to 1, today behind the three-hit pitching of Fred Sanford. It was Sanford's ninth victory against 15 losses and the ninth loss for Hal Newhouser, who started for the Tigers.

The Browns pushed over six runs in a big fifth inning when 11 went to bat.

The Browns gave Sanford a two-run working margin that was enough in the first inning on Gerry Priddy's homer with Al Zarilla aboard. A two-bagger by Whitey Platt scored another run in the third.

But the Browns really teed off on Newhouser in the fifth. With one out, Barilla and Priddy singled. Platt followed with his second double, chasing Newhouser and bringing young Walt Pierce to the mound. Pierce got the next batter out, but then walked the next two and Ed Pellagrino singled two more runs across.

That brought Frank (Stubby) Overmire to the mound and Sanford promptly greeted him with a single, scoring two more. Overmire finally ended the nightmare for 18,887 Detroit fans by gettnig the next batter to fly out.

The Tigers averted a shutout when Eddie Lake walked in the eighth, advanced to third on George Vico's single and scored on George Well's fly.

Vic Raschi Wins His 17th; 6th in Row for New York

Philadelphia, Aug. 22 (AP).—The New York Yankees made it three straight over the nose-diving Philadelphia Athletics today with big Vic Raschi blanking the As, 10-0, on four hits and contributing a base-loaded double in his own cause.

The second game of the scheduled doubleheader was postponed because of rain.

Raschi scored his seventeenth victory of the season making him the winningest pitcher in either league. He pitched to only 32 batters, allowing 3 scattered singles and a double while walking only 2 batters.

He was equal to the task in his only dangerous inning. Raschi walked Ferris Fain to open the seventh and then gave up a double to Hank Majeski, putting runners on second and third. But Raschi pitched out of the jam without allowing a run.

The Yanks hammered Bill McCahan for three runs in the third and duplicated the feat in the fifth on Raschi's base-clearing smash. Charley Harris also suffered a three-run outburst in the sixth frame.

The sweep of the abreviated series stretched the Yankees' winning streak to six, their longest of the season and may have given the world champions the needed shot in the arm for the stretch run.

A near-capacity crowd of 33,306 watched the game.

Joost a Case Of Bad Luck

During pregame practice a grounder struck a pebble and the ball struck the left side of Joost's spectacles, inflicting a slight cut under the eye.

Despite the injury Joost insisted on playing against the New York Yankees. Joe DiMaggio led off the second inning with a screaming bouncer that hopped off Joost's right thumb, injured August 8 in a game with St. Louis, and that didn't help, and Joost was forced to the sidelines for further rest.

Braves Keep Lead, Beat Dodgers, 4-3

Brooklyn, Aug. 22 (AP).—The Boston Braves moved two games ahead of the runner-up Brooklyn Dodgers in the National League flag battle today, coming from behind to nip the Brooks, 4-3, on Rookie Clint Conatser's two-run eighth-inning homer.

The Dodgers stole eight bases, five of them in the sixth inning, when they pulled a triple steal with Jackie Robinson on the front end.

The Dodgers opened the scoring in the second when Pee Wee Reese, who had singled, scored on Bill Hodges' single.

Then the Braves knocked Rex Barney out in the fourth as they took the lead. Earl Torgeson walked and scored on Bob Elliott's triple. Jeff Heath singled Elliott home.

In the fifth the Dodgers again went out in front as Marv Rackley walked, stole second and scored on Jackie Robinson's single. Robinson went to third on Gene Hermanski's hit. Hermanski stole second and an intentional pass to Reese filled the bases. The Dodgers then engineered a triple steal with Robinson beating Voiselle's pitch to the plate.

Sisler Stricken By Appendicitis

New York, Aug. 22 (AP).—Dick Sisler, Philadelphia Phillies' first baseman, suffered a mild attack of appendicitis today during the first game of the Phils-New York Giants double-header, Dr. Anthony Palermo reported.

Sisler left the game in the fourth inning. He was taken to the Phils' clubhouse where ice packs were applied. Dr. Palermo, club physician of the Giants, said he thought Sisler would be able to accompany his team to Cincinnati tonight.

Chicago, Aug. 22 (AP).—The Chicago Cubs trounced the Cincinnati Reds, 10 to 3, here today to reduce the Reds' seventh-place margin over them to 1½ games.

Johnny Schmitz scattered eight hits for his fourteenth victory. The Cubs pounded Ken Raffensberger and two successors for 12 hits, including Bill Nicholson's sixteenth homer. Hank Sauer hit his twenty-eighth homer for the Reds.

Umpire Art Gore was knocked unconscious in the first inning when Andy Pafko's throw in a rundown play hit him on the back of the head. Gore was carried from the field on a stretcher. He regained consciousness after five minutes and was removed to a hospital for observation.

Twelve-man teams, including the club pros, from Belle Haven and Army-Navy played a 9-9 match yesterday at Belle Haven.

Results of individual foursomes: Al Burton, Army-Navy pro, and Col. Robert Allan, 2½; Tom Ryan, Belle Haven pro, and Mike Duffy, ½; Col. M. M. Magee and Roger Browne (A-N), 1, Col. Schriever and Lieut. Howard Sias (BH), 2; Col. Fred Halligan and Col. William Whitehead (A-N), 3; Paul Lipps and Eddie Edwards (BH), 0; A. C. Puryear and Capt. T. K. McHue (A-N), 0; Wally Sezna and Ashby Briggs (BH), 3; F. G. Smith and T. F. Willings (A-N), ½; Alec Guyol and Frank Youry (BH), 2½; L. V. Steele and Admiral John Phillips (A-N), 2; Jack Kurtz and Frank Powers (BH), 1. Points were allotted on the basis of one for the best ball on each nine and one for the 18-hole best ball. The Halligan-Whitehead team had the low ball, with 64, and Ashby Briggs was medalist, with a par 70.

ARGYLE—Martin F. Carpenter shot a hole-in-one on the 135-yard eighth hole yesterday. His four iron turned the trick.

Handicap qualifications for club members started yesterday and will continue through Labor Day.

ARMY-NAVY—Fred Halligan defeated F. G. Smith, one up, in the Newman Cup finals match. Yesterday's blind bogey ended in a three-way tie for the top position among F. M. Elliott, a 90—15—75; W. S. Whitehead with 85—10—75, and H. H. Nielsen with 80—5—75.

BETHESDA—Phil Donaldson won the President's Cup by defeating Tom Manning, 3 and 2, three holes in a raw. Manning birdied the thirteenth, fourteenth and fifteenth, in a late rally but couldn't close the gap. In the second flight, Comdr. W. L. Blatchford downed Col. Fred G. Woods, 3 and 2. Third flight honors went to Hank Harmon who beat Charles Batchelder, 3 and 1. Lew Worsham, former National Open champion, was among the spectators.

INDIAN SPRING—Murray Sagman, playing in a foursome, plunked a hole-in-one into the fourteenth hole with his nine iron. The hole is 120 yards long. Playing with Sagman were Stanley Hayman, Victor Inoff and Morris Weger. R. H. O'Malley took four strokes under par on the front nine, equaled par on the back nine, brought in a thumping 66 for the 18. In a ladies' "White Elephant" blind bogey of nine holes, Mrs. Frank Butler with 57—10—47, shared first prize with Mrs. George Thornton who carded 52—5—47. Mrs. Al Swain scored a 61—15—46 and Mrs. John Minovitch scored a 62—16—46 for second place. The "White Elephant," according to Mel Shorey, club pro, stands for the supposedly unwanted gifts which the ladies exchanged with each other.

MANOR—Three more members turned in qualifying scores yesterday for the club's match play tournament which starts next weekend and continues over until Labor Day weekend. Ed Stevens posted the best card 35-37—72. Ted Burrows scored a 39-35—74 and W. F. Towder brought in a 38-37—75 card.

WASHINGTON—Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Simmons each took a prize in a mixed Scotch foursome yesterday. Mrs. Simmons was the family winner, joining Claud Rippy to score the low gross of 82. Mr. Simmons and Mrs. D. Ball won second low net with 100—28—72. Low net was won by Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Gardner who tallied 84—13—71. An 83 won second low gross for Mrs. W. A. Walsh and L. Swartout.

CONGRESSIONAL — Percy Davis won the low net prize in the Walter McCallum Memorial tournament yesterday with an 82—14—68. Willie Shea's scratch score of 73, only two over par, was good for the low gross prize. In a mixed Scotch foursome, Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Bomar carried off low net honors with a 95—21—74. The low gross card of 41—38—79 was brought in by Mrs. D. H. Henderson and J. L. Geddes.

Rain Halts Second After 4½ Innings

New York, Aug. 22 (AP).—Lefty Monte Kennedy won his first game of the season today as the New York Giants swept a double-header from the Philadelphia Phillies, 9-4 and 3-0.

Kennedy pitched the second game which was called after 4½ innings because of rain. Sheldon Jones went the route in the opener, holding the Phils to six hits in winning his thirteenth game of the year.

Kennedy, who has lost three games, held the Phils to two hits in the curtailed nightcap. The Giants jumped on Veteran Dutch Leonard for two runs in the opening inning on Whitey Lockman's single, Sid Gordon's triple and another one-bagger by Willard Marshall. They added the final run in the second.

In the opener, the Giants salted the game away in the first inning, scoring five times against Walt Dubiel who was honored before the game by 2100 fans from his home town of Hartford, Conn.

Hogan's 270 Wins at Denver, Haas Blows Up on 17th, 18th

Denver, Aug. 22 (AP).—Ben Hogan of Hershey, Pa., overcame a 2-stroke deficit on the final 18-hole round today, posting a 67 to win the $12,500 Denver Open Golf Tournament as Freddie Haas, jr., of New Orleans blew up on the last two holes.

When Hogan finished the 72-hole marathon today, with a grand total of 270, the 32-year-old Haas was beyond the sixteenth green, needing one birdie to win his first major tournament in two years as a professional.

But the pressure was too much for Haas and he went wild on the seventeenth. His approach shot struck a spectator and he required five strokes, one over par, to get the ball down. That left him needing a birdie on the eighteenth to tie Hogan, but he missed a 5-foot putt and took a par 5 to finish second with 271.

Hogan, never worse than second place during the four-day tournament, won $2150 to increase his 1948 earnings to $27,447, the second biggest bankroll of the year on the professional circuit.

Haas received $1550 for second place, while Cary Middlecoff of Memphis, Tenn., and Jimmy Demaret of Ojai, Calif., finished in a tie for third and took $990 each.

Haas moved into the lead in the second round of the tournament and held it for two days, while the "big name" pros shattered par by large margins in unsuccessful efforts to catch him. Until his blow-up today, Haas seemed to have the tournament in the bag.

Haas couldn't withstand the machine-like pressure applied by Hogan. He took a 70 today, his poorest round of the tournament, while Hogan blazed home with another 67.

There was a three-way tie for fifth place among Eric Monti of Santa Monica, Calif.; Ellsworth Vines of Iowa City, Iowa, and Jack Koennecker, Denver amateur. Monti and Vines received $700 each.

Davis Cup Contender

Talbert Goes 5 Sets, Beats Likas for Singles Crowns

Newport, R. I., Aug. 22 (AP).—Billy Talbert of New York won the Newport Casino Invitational tennis tournament today when he stopped Harry Likas of San Francisco, 4—6, 6—3, 4—6, 8—4, 6—2, to end the Westerner's string of amazing upsets.

Likas flashed the more brilliant tennis, but also had spells of poor play, and Talbert took the title by simply wearing him down.

The win projected Talbert squarely into the battle for berths on the U. S. Davis Cup team which will defend the trophy against Australia at Forest Hills, N. Y., beginning September 4. Already a leading candidate for a doubles berth, Talbert thus became a leading claimant to a spot as a singles player as well.

Munching sugar pellets to give him energy, Talbert used a strong overhead game as his biggest weapon. Likas played aggressively, but Talbert was not to be denied the title that eluded him last year when he lost in the final round to Ted Schroeder.

Talbert will now team with Gardnar Mulloy of Miami, Fla., as the pair seeks their fourth win in the sixty-seventh annual national doubles championship opening tomorrow at Longwood Cricket Club.

Takoma Wins 2

Lewistown, Pa., Aug. 22.—The Takoma Decorators girl team won a doubleheader today with the no-hit pitching of Gerry Fiorello in the second game, the big feature. Scores were, 4-2 and 5-0. Gerry struck out 14 in the second game. Three foes reached base off her, one on a walk. She hit two others.

Andrews Field Officer Wins County Net Title

Lieut. Aris Carpousis of Andrews Field defeated James B. Robinson, University of Maryland star, 6—3, 3—6, 6—1, yesterday at College Park to win the Prince Georges County Singles Tennis Tournament championship.

Van Blerck Wins Regatta

Red Bank, N. J., Aug. 22 (AP).—Joe Van Blerck of Freeport, N. Y., won the National Sweepstakes prize today when his 225-inch hydroplane showed speed and staying power to defeat favored contenders in a two-day motorboat regatta marked by a series of misfortunes for racers

The Lahala, owned by Harry Lynn of Lake Hopatcong, N. J., and St. Louis, was beached in the Red Bank Gold Cup race when a propeller blade flew through the bottom and the $65,000 craft filled with water to climax the tough luck that dogged the top boats.

The Gold Cup was won by Sid Street, jr., of Kansas City, Mo., who gunned his 225-cubic inch hydroplane, Z-Z-Zip to victory in the final event of the regatta.

Guy Lombardo's Tempo VI started late and dropped out of the 10-mile race when the Z-Z-Zip crossed the finish line.

Lynn said the Lahala felt as if she hit an obstruction in the first turn of the Gold Cup, then ran along until it reached the far turn of the 2½-mile course.

A propeller blade flew into the bottom of the Lahala, and she started to fill with water, Lynn said. A Coast Guard patrol boat was unable to put a line aboard until the other boats in the race went by. The Lahala was towed to the beach. Norman Lauterbach was driver with Lynn.

Only three boats started today's sweepstake heat. The third, Sea Biscuit, owned by Albert Brinkman, jr., of Buffalo, N. Y., dropped out in the second lap.

Pitcher Catches, Leads Lee's to Win

Herb Peeks, Lee Tabern's regular pitcher, put on the catcher's tools yesterday and slugged his team to a 12-3 victory over Mount Rainier in a Prince Georges Suburban League game at Mount Rainier.

Peeks had a perfect day with a walk, a triple, two doubles and a single. He drove in four runs and scored two. Lee is in first place with five wins and no losses.

Snug Harbor took over undisputed second place with a 9-7 win over Greenbelt at Greenbelt. And Triangle dropped into third place by losing a 7-6 decision to Bladensburg at Bladensburg.

Bill Vita pitched his fourth one-hitter and eighth straight Arena Softball League victory yesterday to lead the Friendship House Rebels to an 8-2 victory over Southeast Stores.

Fox 8 to 5 Over Colan Here Tonight

Billy Fox, the knockout specialist from Philadelphia, and Johnny Colan, the standup boxer from New York, fight tonight at Griffith Stadium for the right to the next crack at former Light-heavyweight Champion Gus Lesnevich.

In another match, billed as a co-feature, Herbie (Biff) Jones and Sonny Boy West, two of the top hometown lightweights, square off. Both bouts are scheduled for 10 rounds.

On the strength of his sensational knockout record of 54 out of 57 bouts, Fox has been installed an 8-5 favorite over Colan. The odds may swing even further in Fox's favor by ringtime.

Fox's 3d Comeback Attempt

Although only 22, this is Fox's third comeback attempt. He twice fought his way to championship matches with Lesnevich, only to be kayoed both times. After the second Lesnevich setback, Fox also dropped a decision to Willie Applegate. And Gus lost his title to Britain's Freddie Mills.

Colan is an experienced 27-year-old, who did well with such as Buddy Knox, John Thomas and Tony Musto, all of whom he has beaten.

However, he suffered disappointing defeat earlier this year when he lost a decision to tough Tommy Yarosz. Since then, however, he's won two knockouts, two decisions and boxed one draw.

Gus, Jack May Attend

Both Lesnevich and former lightweight champ, Beau Jack, who has tentatively promised a match to the Jones-West winner, are expected at ringside tonight.

The Jones-West scrap may turn out the best bout on the card. Both are under 20, have plenty of fights under their belts, and are strong, willing punchers. They met once before, in Baltimore. Sonny Boy staged a late rally in that one, coming from behind to floor Jones in the tenth round and romp off with the decision.

Holly Mims, the local middleweight who made such a fine showing in the Golden Gloves bouts in New York earlier this year, will face Garland Edwards in one of the supporting four-rounders. Red Gaddis opposes Billy Weeks in another featherweight four-rounder.

Hippenstiel, Farrin Titlists

Capts. Robin Hippenstiel and Jim Farrin, both of the Air Force, staged a brillian rally yesterday to win the Federal Employes doubles tennis championship in a three-hour, five sets over Don Leavens and Buddy Adair at Rock Creek courts.

After losing the first two sets, 4—6, 4—6, Hippenstiel and Farrin took successive games, 6—2, 8—6, 6—3.

The Air Force team was very near defeat in the fourth set, falling behind, 4—5, but recovered to win.

Browns Take to Air To Whip Bills, 35-21

Akron, Ohio, August 22 (AP).—Using the deadly long-range aerial attack that has carried them to two successive All-America Football Conference titles, the Cleveland Browns defeated the Buffalo Bills in an exhibition game today, 35-21.

Nearly 30,000 fans were in the Rubber Bowl to see Paul Brown's aerial artist, Otto Graham, toss two touchdown passes, then take it easy as his mates coasted in.

After Cliff Lewis intercepted a George Ratterman pass on his own 40 and scored, Graham hit Dean Sensanbaugher and Mac Speedie for 4- and 56-yard touchdown plays.

Marion Motley and Sensanbaugher got the other two Brown scores in the second and third periods. Lou Groza kicked the five extra points.

The Bills came to life in the second half as Ratterman hit Alton Baldwin with an 8-yard scoring pass and George Teplep passed to Bill O'Connor on the second play of the fourth period.

Bob Steuber converted the three extra points.

Frank Albert Tosses Five Touchdowns

San Francisco, Aug. 22 (AP).—San Francisco's '49ers of the All-America Professional Football Conference inaugurated the 1948 season here in auspicious fashion today by defeating the Baltimore Colts in an exhibition game, 42-14.

A crowd of 35,139 at Kezar Stadium saw the local club, coached by L. T. (Buck) Shaw, outspeed and outpower the Eastern eleven. It was the second one-sided win within a week for the '49ers. They defeated the Los Angeles Dons, 42-24, last Wednesday.

Southpaw Frank Albert quarterbacked the '49ers to their easy triumph. They scored two touchdowns each in the first, second and third quarters, and used a flock of substitutes in the last period. Albert completed 10 of 13 pass attempts. Five of them went for touchdowns.

Colts Outclassed

Cecil Isbell's Colts put over touchdowns in the third and fourth quarters, but were outclassed throughout the contest.

The Colts, able to advance the ball only infrequently during the first three quarters, scored late in the third period after recovering a San Francisco fumble on the latter's 13. Quarterback Y. A. Tittle, from Louisianna State, threw a pass to End Dale Williams, formerly of Rice. The latter ran 10 yards for the touchdown.

Late in the fourth period, the Colts advanced the ball from their own 24-yard line to the '49ers 32 on three pass plays and a few line bucks at that point, Tittle slipped a short pass to End Lamar Davis, raced 15 yards for the score.

The 49ers rolled up a net gain of 274 yards to 174 yards for the Colts, and outdowned the latter, 19 to 9.

Highlander Wins at Show

Hot Springs, Va., Aug. 22 (AP).—Dr. and Mrs. Amory Lawrence's Highlander was named conformation hunter champion as the twentieth annual Bath County Horse show ended here today.

After Hours, property of R. B. Belshee, Staunton, walked away with the five-gaited saddle championship and its purse of $500. Morton W. Smith's Sombrero captured the $500 jumper stake, but Up and Going, owned by Capt. William Weiner, Bridgewater, was pinned champion in the overall jumper competition.

The young and green hunter championship went to Joseph's Coat, owned by Mrs. Gregory McIntosh. Sun Boss, owned by Robert Fairburn, took the reserve ribbon.

Reserve ribbons went to Captain Rex, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Don McIntyre, in the five-gaited saddle class and to Slashes, owned by Mr. and Mrs. George Watts Hill of Roughmont, N. C., in the jumper division.

Forest L. Taylor's Smart Baby won the breeding championship.

Cameo, Plumbers Open City Sandlot Title Series Today

THE CITY SANDLOT championship series, won for 11 straight years by The Washington Post-Industrial League representative, starts today at 4:30 p. m. on the South Ellipse.

Cameo Furniture Co., successor to the Heurich Brewers as The Washington Post champion, meets Merchandising Plumbers of the Departmental League in the curtain raiser.

The double elimination tourney continues at a one-game-a-day pace for nine days. Paired off Tuesday are Jet Motor Co. of the Anacostia Recreation League, and District Fire Department of the Eastern Recreation League. Sacred Heart of the Northern Recreation League takes on the winner of today's game on Wednesday. Each of the five teams is a league champion.

Prize to the champion is representing Washington in the All-America Amateur Baseball Association unlimited tournament at Harrisburg, Pa., on September 3.

Two local junior championship teams try their luck on foreign fields today.

Marx Jewelry Co., winner of the Junior City League title, goes to Johnstown, Pa., to defend its All-America Amateur Baseball Association junior crown against 15 cities. It's a double elimination affair.

Bunker Hill Post, junior American Legion champion of Washington, invades Parkersburg, W. Va., to take part in the Legion's Region 3 tournament. Also represented in the double elimination are the champs from Virginia, West Virginia and Maryland.

The winner of Region 3 gains participation in the Region 1 round-robin which opens next Monday at Manchester, N. H.

Versatile Al Berling, former Gonzaga High athlete, paced the Flying Clouds to a 6-3 win over McKee Pontiac yesterday at Army War College. He pitched a four-hitter, struck out 11, and socked a triple, double and single.

Aussies Win Davis Matches

Brookline, Mass., Aug. 22 (AP).—Little Billy Sidwell, freshman member of the Australian Davis Cup team, pulled his tennis forces into the challenge round against the United States defenders by defeating Vladimir Cernik of Czechoslovakia, 7—5, 6—4, 6—2, in the fifth and deciding match of the interzone finals today at Longwood.

That decisive match, which was halted yesterday by a 5:30 p. m. deadline with Sidwell leading, 7—5, and three games to one, was turned into a romp by the Australian when it was resumed.

After the one-sided match Karel Kozeluh, the former professional serving as the Czech's captain and technical advisor, complained that the linesmen called "at least a dozen close shots against Cernik." The Australian players declined to comment about that charge.

After the match, however, each of the Czech players had complained about the officiating.

"I never saw such officiating," said Cernik, flushed and angry. "I don't understand it. I guess we just are not very popular here."

Earlier Cernik had complained to newsmen that he lost three critical points in the first set yesterday "at important times" because of "careless officiating."

Sidwell's upset 6—3, 6—2, 9—11, 14—12 win over Jaroslav Drobny, the Czech ace, was the highlight of the interzone finals.

Adrian Quist, the Australian captain, defeated Cernik, 6—2, 13—11, 6—0, but lost to Drobnoy by 6—8, 3—6, 18—16, 6—3, 7—5 margins. The other Czech victory was gained in the doubles match, during which Drobny and Cernik defeated Colin Long and Geoff Brown, 10—8, 4—6, 6—3, 6—4.

Tim Coss Wins N. Y. Net Title

New York, Aug. 22.—Tim Coss of Washington, D. C., won the Metropolitan New York Boys tennis tournament today by defeating Ed Baly of Harrisburg, Pa., 6—1, 6—2. The tourney was sponsored by the New York State Lawn Tennis Association.

Two Hurlers Earn Double Triumphs

Five rubber-armed young sandlotters pitched in both ends of City Unlimited League doubleheaders yesterday on the Ellipse, but only two succeeded in gaining double victories.

Relief Pitcher Warren Erhardt of first-place Merchandizing Plumbers earned his two wins under surprisingly similar circumstances. In each game, he relieved Starter Harry O'Neill in the eighth inning. He earned a 7-6 win over Bamby Bread and a 4-3 triumph over Southeast Merchants on ninth-inning game-ending singles by Joe Murphy, former Georgetown University star.

Bernie Myles, relieving in the first inning against Southeast Merchants and pitching the whole game against Taft, earned two wins for second-place Bornstein. The respective scores were 9-6 and 8-0. In 17 1/3 innings, Myles gave up two runs, seven hits, struck out 15 and walked three.

Five-foot, 4-inch Al Giuffreda, who was an infielder until this season, pitched both ends of a doubleheader for Government Insurance and, with a little luck, might have won both. He lost, 2-1, to Elite on Hal Nitowitz's squeeze bunt in the ninth. Giuffreda received more hitting support in the nightcap and beat Phileo, 7-4.

Lefty Paul Schaefer of Northeast Body Works pitched a brilliant two-hit shutout to stop Phileo, 7-0, in the first game of a twin bill. But when he tried to stop a ninth-inning Bamby Bread rally in the second contest, he was charged with a 3-4 loss. In the other league game, Taft outslugged Griffith Consumers, 12-5.

Terp Captures Sailing Title

Urbanna, Va., Aug. 22 (AP).—J. Willis Martin, jr., 24-year-old University of Maryland student, captured the National Hampton one design sailing title here today on the Rappahannock River with a total of 23.25 points.

Martin sailed "My Dream" to second place in today's race, and this showing, added to the first and fourth the craft garnered yesterday, gave him the championship.

Martin represented the Annapolis Yacht Club.

In second place for the series was Clay Gatewood in Lucille The Second, of Willoughby Yacht Club, with 22.25 points. Gatewood took a fifth in the first race yesterday and placed second in the second race, and led the fleet today in the final race.

Lloyd Emory of Gloucester, defending champion, sailing the Rough Passage, original Hampton One, was leading the fleet by two points for the trophy after two races yesterday, but fell back in the third race today to take sixth place after getting off to a bad start.

Emory placed third in the series with 21.25 points.

The perpetual Hampton One design trophy was presented Martin this afternoon by R. L. Fraser, jr., commodore of the association, along with three other trophies to winners of the first three places in the series.

YES, you make a mighty handsome picture, sweeping down the street in this sleek and neat-lined carriage.

Your hand on the wheel rests ever light and easy because this beauty tracks so true, obeys so readily your slightest guidance.

Your treadle foot can get an instant crescendo from the quiet purr of a Fireball power plant that's patiently content when you want to take it easy — and beaver-eager the instant you signal for action.

Soft deep springs of coil steel soak up shocks and blows that spell jarring jolts and jounces in lesser vehicles.

Power flows with a special silkiness from which engine sensation is eliminated by special Hi-Poised engine mountings not found in any other automobile on the market.

When you want to loaf, you loaf in deep content. When you want to go, you go with a surge of thrilling power that won't be denied its place at the head of the procession.

Fun? Of course it's fun to travel in Buick SUPER fashion.

Internal Revenue Lodge Domination Laid to Bosses

A charge has been made that the Internal Revenue Lodge of the AFL's American Federation of Government employes is dominated by supervisory officials who have intimidated rank-and-file employes. The fight will be taken to the union's Philadelphia convention next week for a showdown.

Involved in the hot controversy are the political fortunes of two candidates for union president, James Yaden and James Burns, both of this city. This is the story:

The president of the Revenue Lodge, Richard C. Vingoe, and a number of other members favored the reelection of James Burns. But Ira Y. Bain, a top Revenue personnel official, is accused of calling a meeting of the local without Vingoe's knowledge and of using his influence to get a slate of delegates elected to support Yaden. Bain's friends flatly deny that he used his official position to intimidate rank-and-file members into supporting his candidate.

In the protest that has been lodged with the union, it's charged that Bain, a former national AFGE vice president, had not attended a lodge meeting since 1941 and that he was a year in arrears in his dues, since paid up. Besides Bain, the other delegate elected to the convention was McKinley Kriegh, a supervisory official in the Income Tax Unit. As president, Vingoe is automatically a delegate.

However, it's expected that Vingoe will lead a fight to prevent Bain and Kriegh from being seated at the convention. Vingoe followers say the Bain-Kriegh squeeze play is "company union" tactics at its worst. He's answered by Bain-Kriegh friends who say Vingoe was the victim of a smart political play and that his fussing about it is merely sour grapes.

The Revenue fight could very well lead to a test of strength between Burns and Yaden forces. Meantime, there are reports from Cincinnati that James Campbell, a VA employe, will be a formidable candidate for the top AFGE office.

LEAVE: Here is an excerpt from a letter which brings out an overlooked point in the many discussions of annual leave:

"Government employes are not entitled to unemployment compensation and the only thing they have available is their annual leave to tide them over the period of locating another job when necessary. Such a condition was important during the recent reduction in force.

"I have seen many employes forego vacations due to the insecurity of their positions and the necessity of keeping their leave for the possibility of seeking other employment. As it is now, each individual must consider leave as possible unemployment compensation." Well put.

GAO: General Accounting is again cracking down on tardiness. The lunch hour has been cut from 36 to 30 minutes and employes who are a minute or so late at any time must either be excused officially or be charged an hour's leave . . . PATENT OFFICE: The new procedure manual is being written by a 15-man editorial board of patent examiners, whose chairman is Ernest Faller . . . AGRICULTURE: P. V. Carden was promoted the other day to one of Agriculture's top jobs, chief of the Agricultural Research Administration. The promotion cost him $330; his $10,330 salary was cut to $10,000.

DINNER: More than 600 Federal officials and employes will attend a testimonial dinner tonight at the Mayflower for Arthur S. Flemming who leaves next week to be president of Ohio Wesleyan College. Among the speakers will be former President Herbert Hoover, Defense Secretary Forrestal, Attorney General Clark, and Frances Perkins, Flemming's colleague on the Civil Service Commission.

CIVIL SERVICE NOTES: A meteorologist exam for jobs to pay from $3727 to $6235 will be announced soon. It will be used to fill about 350 posts, mainly in the Weather Bureau here . . . An exam for instrument maker also is in the works. The jobs pay from $2498 to $4478 to start for opening at the Bureau of Standards and Smithsonian . . . Exams for 10 jobs are open at Fort Belvoir, Va. Among them are sewing machine operator, seamstress, tailor, shoe repairman, and office equipment repairman.

VETERANS: The number of disabled veterans in the executive branch of the Government has more than doubled in the last 2½ years, from 50,973 to 103,770. In the metropolitan area of this city the number of veteran preference employes is 69,314 of whom 6564 are disabled.

AWARDS: At the State Department, the first cash awards have been given to Leo Doloff and James A. Clay for valuable work-saving suggestions. A secretary, Mildrel S. Studds, was given an additional in-grade promotion for streamlining the work of her office.

At Agriculture, pay increases for superior accomplishments have been given to Matthew K. Veldhuis, Alfred M. Neubert, Robert L. Updike, Albert Pence, Mary K. Hunt, Thelma N. Kelley, Christian C. Deonier, Clinton L. Davis, Carter J. Helseth, Jeanette Morgan, George P. Morgan, George LeCompte, Paul Mertz and Carl Julian.

Handicapped Told to Ask Union Clause Protection

Machinists' Head Cites Benefits Of Policy Fixing With Employers

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

Labor contract clauses protecting handicapped workers were recommended yesterday by Harvey W. Brown, president of the International Association of Machinists, before the Federation of Physically Handicapped at Hotel Roosevelt. The organization's convention ended with a luncheon.

Brown said local unions should make the clauses a "first objective" in negotiating agreements with management. He recommended that they include "a statement recognizing the handicapped problem and setting forth the basic labor-management policy," and formation of a joint committee "to carry out the policy."

"Once the basic policy and the machinery for its application have been established," said Brown, "the union and the company can undertake the joint construction of a program which assures complete justice to the physically handicapped."

Benefits Are Cited

It would also benefit unimpaired workers, he said, pointing out that it would protect them "against future physical impairment resulting from unsafe working conditions, unwise job assignments, or lack of training." Likewise, he added, it would serve to deter employment of the physically handicapped in low-wage competition with other wage earners.

"The seeking of special position in hiring, layoffs and promotions for handicapped workers may seem to serve well the temporary needs of that group of our labor force," he said. "But in the long run it will destroy the very system of seniority which guarantees job protection to all."

The union official estimated there are one million handicapped persons who could be trained for work in addition to 500,000 now able and willing to work who are now unemployed.

Delegates backed their president, Paul A. Strachan, in naming Brown to honorary lifetime membership.

The delegates also heard a medical report of progress in rehabilitation of industry-crippled miners through services of the United Mine Workers Welfare and Retirement Fund, made by Dr. R. R. Sayers, medical director of the fund. He said the benefits under the fund have been largely concentrated on "aiding the most severely handicapped."

Help for Crippled Miners

In the main, he said, these are paraplegics, "the miners whose backs were broken in mine accidents and who developed paralysis from their injuries." More than 350 such victims, "some in terrible state," have been uncovered and found eligible for treatment, Dr. Sayers said. About half of that number are already being treated, he reported.

In fervent speech, President Strachan urged the delegates to return to their local lodges and educate the public "to the need for" passage of Senate Bill 2896 which would establish a Federal Commission for the Physically Handicapped.

"This is the most important measure ever written in behalf of handicapped persons," Strachan declared. The bill, he said, would provide a "maximum extension" of medical services, education, vocational guidance and training and would finance grants to the totally and permanently disabled.

Col. G. H. Rarey, (USA retired), of Decatur, Ga., author of the proposed National Leprosy Act, discussed the need of a national program to educate the nation to the true nature of leprosy.

Spastics Not Insane, Social Worker Finds

A welfare worker from India yesterday confessed to "responsibility" for confining several spastics in his country to mental institutions.

Wilfred P. Singh, the visitor, said he first learned spastics aren't insane Saturday at the convention's panel session on cerebral palsy.

"I share the responsibility with my psychiatrist, who should have known better," said Singh. "When I go back I shall remedy the errors."

Singh, who served as adviser to magistrates in juvenile courts in India, said he is in United States to study welfare work.

Reminiscences of War's Little Things Feature Reunion at Mayflower Hotel

By V. R. Montanari
Post Reporter

Santiago . . . San Juan . . . Tuituila . . . Santa Maria . . . Pago Pago—such names as these, and many others recalling the former Spanish possessions in the Western Hemisphere, were as common in the lobby of the Hotel Mayflower yesterday as they were 50 years ago.

It was the first day of the United Spanish War Veterans' fiftieth national encampment, which has brought to Washington for five days several thousand men of '98 and their families, to commemorate and reminisce.

As men always will, they remembered the little things about the war, and talked about them—the rations of long-stored canned food they ate, the pestilence of insects in the Pacific islands, the silver-handled machete received from a Spanish officer in trade for two pieces of hardtack.

They were reticent about their fighting experiences, possibly because of the much greater wars fought since—in one of which many of them also participated.

Some remembered seeing Col. Teddy Roosevelt, the hero of San Juan Hill. He was a great kidder, that feller.

"Our company—Company C, Eighth Ohio Volunteer Infantry—was camped over at Sevilla Hill, near Santiago, with some D. C. regiment, and I was sent over to headquarters to get some potatoes, right about the time of the surrender," said 71-year-old C. B. Maxwell of Alliance, Ohio.

"Teddy asked me what outfit I was with," he continued, "and when I told him, he says, 'Oho! I'll have to be good to you fellers. I hear they call you McKinley's pets.'"

"We never knew when we'd get mail or pay," said George G. Ott, 75, of Vineland, N. J., a chief of section in Riley's Battery F, Fifth Artillery, voicing a complaint familiar to some more recent warriors.

"Once it was eight months with no pay," said Ott, who went in as a regular and served in Cuba, Puerto Rico, the Philippines and the Boxer uprising in China, "and it was eight months before we heard McKinley was dead."

Even when they talked of the battles, it was the small incidents and situations that stuck in their minds.

"It was 9:30 Sunday morning, and we were at quarters on deck, with the chief machinist taking rollcall and calling out the men who would be on watch," said Louis P. Brown, 73-year-old veteran of the Battle of Santiago.

His ship, the USS Indiana, was lying outside Santiago with four other battleships and cruisers, guarding the harbor where the Spanish fleet was bottled up.

"The captain—Capt. Henry C. Taylor—was inspecting the ship while we were at quarters," Brown continued. "A shout came from a man aloft that the Spanish fleet was under way. We knew what that meant, and eagerly waited for the order to man our battle stations, as a messenger ran below to tell the captain.

"We waited, still in ranks. Under an 8-inch gun, I saw the Spanish flagship appear at the mouth of the harbor. We were still in ranks when the Iowa fired the first challenge shot, and our ship had begun to move toward the Spaniards—but the captain stayed below.

"Then, finally, we heard footsteps up a companionway. The captain had finished his inspection. As we stiffened to attention, he himself gave the order: 'Man your battle stations!'"

There were others registering for the encampment yesterday who had not been overseas, like Adolph Sonnenberg, 71-year-old Fourth Cavalry veteran, a range rider who later turned farmer.

"We were sent up to Fort Walla Walla, Wash., to watch the Indians," he said. "Not that there'd been any trouble there for some years, but the Government wanted them to know there were still some soldiers around.

"We'd ride down to the reservation every once in a while, to let them know we were still there. They were still training us for Indian warfare, how to put the horses in a circle around us and shoot over their backs, and such things as that."

Others, like Vincent A. Osterman, associate judge of the Orphans' Court in Prince Georges County, Md., saw romantic isles of the Pacific they had heard about turn into places of boredom and loneliness, as many did more recently.

And so, between reminiscences, these veterans of what they term "the first scrap" and some who saw the "second," will celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of the war they helped to win, as representatives of the 117,000 who survive.

Last night, they participated in memorial services at Constitution Hall conducted by M. M. Reynolds, their chaplain in chief, and Horace M. Havner, commander in chief.

Today, the USWV, national auxiliary and affiliated groups will conduct a joint session at 9:30 a. m. in Constitution Hall, with O. W. Clark, executive assistant administrator of the Veterans Administration, as the main speaker.

Inefficiency Hit 4th Time In Alexandria

Alexandria Councilman-elect Marshall J. Beverley yesterday, for the fourth time in a week, struck at alleged inefficiency in the city government—this time at the city shop which services motorized equipment.

Beverley said he had inspected the shop, located in the 400 block of N. Pitt st., yesterday and had been "amazed to find that of the city's 125 pieces of motorized equipment 75 per cent is always exposed to deterioration by the weather."

"Worse than that," he said, "is the fact that the shop has only one mechanic and two helpers to keep in repair all the fire, police and other vehicles of the city. If one fire engine went out of commission, nothing else could be fixed until it was repaired."

Beverley who takes office September 1, said, "The city must take immediate action to see that equipment is protected from the weather and kept in running order."

Other objects of Beverley's attack's recently were the methods of assessing real estate for tax purposes.

Earlier in the week, Beverley had attacked methods of assessing real estate for tax purposes, called for a single department of finance and hit at the health department for what he called its "do nothing policy."

Gets No Privileges

'Axis Sally' Eats Well In D. C. Jail

"Axis Sally" is just another prisoner as far as the District Jail is concerned.

Mildred Elizabeth Sisk, alias Gillars, 47-year-old American-born spinster flown to Washington from Germany Saturday to face treason charges, is "getting no special privileges," Donald Clemmer, director of the Department of Corrections, said yesterday.

"She ate her meals pretty well," Clemmer said, "and told another woman prisoner they were better than those in Germany most of the time."

For dinner she had veal chop, mashed potatoes, canned peas, fresh tomatoes and dessert—the same as the others. It probably cost 15.22 cents, Clemmer said.

When she was admitted Saturday, following her arraignment in the office of United States Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence, she went through the regulation routine—shower bath, finger printing, search by a woman attendant, prison clothing and assignment to a cell room.

"Naturally we are watching her for any possible suicide attempt," Clemmer said, "but then we watch about 200 other prisoners for the same thing."

Miss Sisk, or Gillars—the confusion in names originating in the remarriage of her now-dead mother—is being held without bail.

After a preliminary hearing August 31, her case will be investigated by a Federal Jury. If it indicts her she will be brought to trial here.

She is said by the Federal government to have given aid and comfort to the enemy by propaganda broadcasts to Allied troops over the Nazi radio.

The complaint charges she did "unlawfully, wilfully and treasonably adhere to the government of the German Reich, an enemy of the United States."

Church Parade Ends In Fight, Riot Call

A parade and baptism at the House of Prayer Church, 6th and M sts. nw., was climaxed yesterday with a fight and a riot call that brought out police reserves.

The church, led by Bishop Charles Grace who is affectionately known to his followers as "Daddy," had held its twenty-second annual convocational parade with uniformed bandsmen and flower queens on floats.

The fight started as the parade disbanded near the church. It ended with arrest by two special officers, who had been employed by the bishop, of a girl cornetist in the band and a 30-year-old man, both charged with disorderly conduct.

A shouting, protesting crowd, estimated at nearly 500, then followed the special officers as they led their prisoners to Second Precinct Police Station at 500 New York ave. nw., causing them to put in the riot call for reserves.

Arrested were Ruth Reeves, 28, of 1929 11th st. nw., the cornet player, and Willie Hogard, 30, of 1637 10th st. nw. The girl was released immediately upon electing to forefeit $5.

A feature of the religious services was baptism of young and old with geysers shot from a fire hose.

Bell Pupils' Transfer to Powell Set

The Board of Education has approved by poll the transfer of Powell Junior High pupils to Central High School this fall, and have students at Bell Vocational High School make partial use of the Powell school, officials said yesterday.

However, funds to equip the Powell school building for shop training are not available, so Bell students will have only academic classes at the junior high building for the time being.

The vocational students will continue to have shop training at the 60-year-old Bell school, 7th and O sts. nw., while attending classes at the Powell building on alternate days or alternate weeks according to Lawson J. Cantrell, associate superintendent in charge of vocational and junior high schools.

Under the plan, the Powell building will not be left unused when school reopens in September, and the Bell pupils—who staged a brief strike against conditions at their building in June—will have better quarters part of the time.

As the Powell building is 1¼ miles away, at Hiatt pl. and Lamont st. nw., officials decided it would be unreasonable to split a pupil's day between the two schools. Thus each student will alternate during an entire day, or week, at each school.

Originally, the Board of Education planned to send the Bell students to Central High, resulting in authorization by Congress of $58,000 for alterations and $157,000 for equipment. These funds, along with an estimated $150,000 additional for alterations, would have to be transferred for use at the Powell building if it is made a full-time vocational school.

Cirminello Quads, 'Going on 4,' Enlarge Child World Outlook

The horizons of their world are expanding daily for the Cirminello quadruplets, who are just "going on" four.

With the beginning of school still about two years away, Maureen, Kathleen, Eileen and Michael are learning about "helping mother," and how flowers smell, and how to play with other children, and how much fun it is to ride on the merry-go-round at Glen Echo.

Mrs. Joseph Cirminello said yesterday that all in all, it's been a fairly quiet summer—if you can have four children around and call it quiet.

Visit to Other Quads

The family took a vacation in early June and journeyed to Brooklyn, where they saw the Zarief quads, seven months older than the Cirminellos. The mothers compared notes on bringing up their families.

They also stopped by Philadelphia, where the quads' first pediatrician was pleased with the children's development.

Mostly, though, the quads have spent the summer in Arlington, at their home, 1653 Colonial Terrace. They have playmates among the neighborhood children, and they like to "visit" up and down the street, Mrs. Cirminello said yesterday.

More and more, they are emerging as individuals. Eileen has taken a fancy to sewing, and yesterday was "sewing" a new pattern on her playsuit.

Flowers and Bugs

Maureen was getting a bang out of some flowers, which she clutched with loving care, and wanted to put in her mouth until her father said "bugs walk on things like that."

Eileen was sporting a duck whistle, which she blew with dignity and aplomb, and Michael was interested in wearing his soldier suit.

The quads seem to be in good health—last checkup in June—and are just about ready for their fall physicals, Mrs. Cirminello said.

In fact, the quads are coming right along—for four mites who began their lives on November 1, 1944, with medicine dropper feedings, and with, statistically speaking, very little chance of survival.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Married Couple Wonder What Social Policy To Adopt Toward Man's Brother, or Rather His Paramour, Who Has Taken Him From Wife

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My husband and I would like your advice on a very difficult situation. Here are the incontrovertible facts, well known to all who are acquainted with the persons involved.

My husband's brother Ned has been married for 14 years to a lovely wife, Mary, whose conduct has always been above reproach. They have two children.

About a month ago Ned left home to further an affair begun a year ago. At the time the affair started, the other woman was fully cognizant of Ned's marital status.

Deserting Husband Intent on Divorce

WE LIVE in a large city where Ned is quite well known and has been seen in public with her by innumerable people, both in and out of town. They have taken several trips together and are in general living in adultery.

Ned's present plans include divorce and remarriage, which will take several years. Thus we, his only close relatives, are placed in the position of having either to accept or reject the girl.—I'll call her Stella. The thought of accepting her is repellent to me; the more so because we are friendly with Mary and the children who live very close by.

What should be our attitude to the girl now, and also later, if Ned marries her? Jim and I wish to do what is right; and it is hard to think clearly on a subject about which we are naturally so prejudiced. R. D.

Policy-Making Seems Premature

DEAR R. D.: Unless and until Ned marries Stella, you won't be "in the position of having either to accept or reject" her. And if there isn't a chance of her marrying into the family for several years, then surely it's false to proclaim that the hour of decision is upon you now.

Inasmuch as Mary, an exemplary character, is your near neighbor and close friend, and Ned has deserted her and the children to further a liaison with Stella, it isn't likely that he and his paramour will be fishing for advocacy in that vicinity during the indeterminate period when they may be consorting on terms that are flagrantly outside the law and offensive to public mores.

Yet assuming they had the effrontery to do so, it would be in a brash spirit of gambler's risk, certainly. They would be half-prepared for rebuff and privately surprised if it weren't forthcoming from you, I should think.

Letter Signifies Morbid Curiosity

UNLESS they are morons or psychopaths, adult-age persons who violently break with orthodox patterns of decency, don't expect right-living citizens to back them up, even though some of these bad actors may have the daring to test the mettle of group resistance to their misconduct, by blandly elbowing their way into test-situations after defying the social code.

Incidentally, the odd thing about your letter is its implication that you have no inherent moral convictions, no firmly held ethical concepts to guide you in process of trying to "place" Stella in your scheme of things. Which makes your busy preoccupation with the question all the more curious.

It occurs to me that possibly, unconsciously, you are deriving emotional relish from pondering Mary's predicament and Ned's hijinks, also entertaining a morbidly fascinated curiosity about Stella, with the result that you are imaginatively conjuring future meetings (or dealings) with her that may never come to pass. In any event, my advice is not to encourage friendship with Stella, as matters stand; and to stop fretting the question as one of importance to you and Jim. M. H.

Mary Haworth counsels through her column, not by mail or personal interview. Write her in care of The Washington Post.

Mrs. Barkins Advises

To Copy Hollywood Hair-Dos Is Fine—But Not Divorces

By Nicha Soure

ANY woman who has sense enough to choose a husband and run a house doesn't have to go running to statistics and books to find out if her marriage is a success. Common sense is the answer to marital happiness, says Mrs. Evelyn Barkins.

Mrs. Barkins is the wife of Dr. W. J. Barkins, surgeon of New York, mother of ree children, a concert pianist, a licensed attorney and author of two books. She gave her opinions of marriage over Claude Mahoney's Weekly Reader Saturday in connection with her latest book, "I Love My Doctor."

Children Come Along

The family, including the children, 8-year-old Elizabeth, 4-year-old Martha and 2-year-old George, came to Washington Friday for a week in the Capital.

After Labor Day, Mrs. Barkins will start on a WAC recruiting tour along the East Coast. The children will go with her and Dr. Barkins will join them when he can get away from his surgery practice in New York.

And Mrs. Barkins will not have a nurse or a maid for the children. She has been able to practice law, run a house, take care of three active youngsters and find time to write two books in the past. She knows she can handle a tour and the children, too.

The phychological outlook was depressing when she had a maid, she says. The adjustment to being Rosie O'Grady one day and the colonel's lady the next day was too great.

Works by System

Now she has a system in order to maintain her busy schedule. Under her supervision, the children take care of their "quarters" which is the upstairs of their house.

She believes in cleanliness, but is not a fanatic about a spotless house.

In order to accomplish all she has do do, Mrs. Barkins has given up her afternoon social life. There are no bridge parties and no long, extended shopping tours. When buying a dress she looks at shop windows. "If the dress looks well on the mannequin, it might look well on me," she explains. "But if it doesn't look well on the mannequin, it couldn't possibly look well on me."

About marriage, Mrs. Barkins has very definite ideas. A husband, she says, should confide in his wife the business successes and disappointments of the day in order to gain her confidence and cooperation. To lend an importance to marriage, she thinks the breadwinner should register the wedding date in applying for a job and with the anniversary he should get an extra day off.

The author of the book on marriage thinks Hollywood is responsible for popularizing divorce. "No harm is done when Americans follow Hollywood's example in dress and hair-dos. But divorce is another thing," she declares.

Mrs. Barkins' first book, "The Doctor Has a Baby," treated the subject of child-rearing in the same light, common-sense way in which her second treats of marriage.

The Correct Container

You can ruin the beauty of a bouquet of flowers if you place them in an unsuitable container. The holder should either be a lovely contrast to the flowers or should blend in as the continuance of the blossoms. Delicate vases should house delicate blooms and heavy containers should be used for hearty flowers.

Sturdy Supports

When you have the picture down from the wall cleaning it, look over the wires or cord carefully and see that it is in good condition before returning it to its place. You may save the fall of a valuable painting by this little investigation.

French Label, Low Price Tag

Paris Designs for the Older Woman

By Peggy Preston

WHETHER we like to admit it or not, we all would love to have a Paris label in our dresses. It signifies something every woman wants—chic, elegance, and yes, an expensive, distinctive garment.

Well, in the good old American way, manufacturers are seeing to it that a woman doesn't have to be rich to own a frock with a Paris label. There are copies of French originals on the market today, priced as low as $16.95, complete with the little square of silk at the neckline carrying the name of a famous Paris designer.

A group of just such garments has arrived in Washington and will be available at Lansburgh's on Tuesday, August 24. We think they are worth writing about because they are especially, and frankly, designed for the mature woman.

SHE IS the woman, for instance, who measures in height from 5 feet 2 inches to 5 feet 5 inches. The years have endowed her with some extra pounds and a few surplus bulges. Her dress size runs from 14½ to 24½, and no one knows the trouble she runs into trying to find a decent looking dress. Her shopping woes are legion.

SIMPLY styled for the matron is this inexpensive crepe dress, a copy of a Paris original by Catherine Parel. V-neckline and many-gored skirt make it suitable for the woman with a figure problem. Interesting item is the belt which may be worn plain or with jewel-studded band. Available Tuesday and later at Lansburgh's

BLACK calfskin pumps, designed for solid comfort with medium heel and snug-fitting arch, are ideal for the mature woman who has difficulty finding smart, wearable shoes. These are designed to fit high over the instep and are elasticized-lined to give further foot ease. Comes in sizes from 1 to 11 and in widths from 5A to C. Available at L. E. Massey Shoe Store at the Willard Hotel

This group of eight styles, copies of originals by Jacques Heim, Jean Farell, Rosine Paris and Catherine Parel, are designed for such a woman. They are cut to fit her figure specifications and while they are definitely matron styles, they have younger lines than are usually incorporated into such garments.

There is a handsome purple suit of softest wool and the other seven are crepe dresses, all with interesting and fashion-right detail.

A dark crepe crepe, for instance, has a three-tiered skirt and flat shawl collar, crossing at the waistline. It is trimmed tastefully in gunmetal beading. The purple suit has a design of matching beading on either side of the jacket and all the other frocks have similar detail either at the neckline, wrist or belt.

All are so modestly priced that they can come within the clothing allowance of the majority of women.

SHOES are another wardrobe item that taxes the patience of the mature woman shopper. Often they lack styling, are clumsy looking, unattractive, and seem to spoil the effects of a dress-up outfit.

We found a pair of pumps that may be helpful for those in quest of nice footwear that also spells solid comfort. They come in sizes from 1 to 11 and in widths from 5A to C. Equally suited for the small or large foot, they are styled with either high or medium heels. Materials are calf or suede and colors are navy blue, wine, green, black and brown.

They are excellent pumps in that they are cut from a last that fits snugly under the arch and reaches high around the instep, making it all but impossible for them to slip off the heel. Elasticized lining make them ultra-comfortable, and bow trimming breaks the long line of the vamp.

About Cleaning Leather Purse

I have a beautiful leather and suede tan pocketbook which is very soiled. The few places I have called or gone to say they cannot clean it or cannot guarantee the results. Is there any place that specializes in this work? A. F.

There is a shop on 14th st. that accepts some purses of this type for cleaning and guarantees work on the ones that are accepted. I'd suggest calling the store at Executive 0961 and explaining your problem to one of the leather experts there.

Noting your suggestion that some reader might send in a Chess Pie recipe, I am mailing you mine—an old Southern one and the best ever. I'm giving it in its original lavish proportions, which makes two large pies.

CHESS PIE

- 12 egg yolks
- 3 cups white sugar
- ½ cup butter
- ½ cup sweet milk
- 2 teaspoons vinegar
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- ½ teaspoon nutmeg
- ½ teaspoon mace

Beat sugar into beaten egg yolks. Add butter, softened but not melted. Add other ingredients and pour into unbaked pastry shell. Bake at 450 degrees for 5 minutes, then at 300 degrees for 30 minutes more. Since this browns very quickly, a pan of water on upper shelf of oven is helpful. There is no meringue.

My frying pan has a thick deposit on the outside. How can I remove this? A READER.

If you have a gas stove, this hard deposit can be burned off. Just place the dry pan on the burner and allow to remain until all deposit is gone. We do not recommend that you use this method on an electric stove, for the intense heat which will develop might burn out the burner. After treating in this way, the pan must be reseasoned by heating at a low temperature for three or four hours with a generous coating of unsalted fat on it. Another method for removing the hard substance would be to saturate a paper towel with household ammonia and place over the deposit. Arrange some method for keeping it damp and leave overnight. This should soften the scale so it can be scoured off with steel wool and kitchen cleanser. More than one application may be necessary to remove it completely.

Can you tell me where I can buy a hand tool to make wooden screws and thread openings? I have seen advertisements in wood-working magazines for such a gadget, but though I have looked assiduously, I seem to have mislaid the advertisement. This is strictly for the amateur—with a cabinetmaking hobby. I have tried several large hardware and tool outlets in Washington. T. R. P.

We have tried numerous others, as well as hobby shops and the like, and have been unable to locate such a tool. Any suggestions, readers?

My poster bed has loosened at the head and is very squeaky. Can you suggest some way to relieve it? E. F.

Pouring a little melted paraffin into the loose joints of the bedstead will do much to eliminate the squeaking. Melt the paraffin over water, not over a direct flame, as it is inflammable. A thorough tightening may, of course, be necessary if the bed is very loose in the "joints."

I have some white linen of very fine quality which has been stamped for embroidery. I want to remove the stamping. Can you tell me what to use? W. K. B.

The stamping should come out readily by washing in hot water and soap. However, if it doesn't, use a bleach. Using a household bleach, make the solution in the proportion of 2 tablespoons of bleach to each quart of water. Let the linen soak in this for 30 minutes to one hour. Or, if you are washing it in a machine you could add two cups of bleach to the full washes of water and bleach it as it is washed.

We are a company that covers 35 of the 48 States. We specialize in training salesmen to become better salesmen through a method that is unlike any other used by companies of our type. Believe it or not 6 new men who started work with us a week ago are earning $100 a week or better. Whether you have ever sold before or not, it makes no difference to us. As long as you are sincere and willing to accept our proven method of training. You have nothing to lose and everything to gain by investigating this unusual offer.

This opportunity today is giving many local men—all vocation—the certainty needed for the purchase of a new home, autos and many other needs for comfort and security. Earnings run many times their present incomes. Many of our men earn from $700 to $800 monthly in commissions selling electrical units. Since this is not the usual "Run of the Mill" sales proposition, we will present our plan only if your wife accompanies you—her happiness is contingent on your success and she must know completely the first time what you will be offered. We are sincere in this offer. Write hope to see you and your wife Tuesday evening, August 24. Call me for time and meeting place—I will be at one of the leading Washington hotels. THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

He Ain't Whistling Dixie Is He Uncle Joe?

Press dispatches reveal that when New York reporters tried to get Soviet Consul General Lomakin to talk about his recall to Russia, he refused to comment.

I'm afraid the New York reporters weren't hep to the proper technique for interviewing diplomats. Washington newsmen would have been more subtle, and probably would have begun their questioning with:

"Sir, we wonder if you could tell us whether it's true that the thermometer sometimes gets down to 40-below in Siberia?"

TURNABOUT

Police say that their raids on the after-hours clubs were based on purchases of whiskey made by undercover agents.

Those agents must lead a tough home life. Imagine coming home to the little woman, having her smell your breath and exclaim angrily:

"Harry, you bounder, you're cold sober again. I'll bet you weren't even at work today."

After our recent item about people who have to wait a long time for their driving license tests, an irate applicant from Monroe st. nw. raised this question:

"Why is it that AAA pupils and other institutional groups can make afternoon appointments, whereas the unaffiliated public has to get up at the crack of dawn and wait for hours for a test?"

Traffic Director Keneipp, as usual, has a ready answer:

"First, if we didn't segregate the unaffiliated public from the schools, the crowding would be very objectionable whenever a large class would descend on the examiners.

"Secondly, we give everybody an appointment for the approximate time we think we can handle his test—and that applies to the unaffiliated public as well as to schools."

PIED TYPE DEPT.

James J. Thomas of 5347 Bass pl. se. calls our attention to the recent classified ad which announced:

"LEAVING for San Francisco and Los Angeles August 18. Can take $2."

Shades of Adolf Hitler and his blocked marks!

NO MORE NUMBERS, PLEASE

Something inside me cries out "No! No!" at the news that the telephone company is soon going to ask us to remember an extra digit for each subscriber.

Instead of the five things we must now keep fixed in our minds (exchange plus four numbers), we'll have to recall six things (exchange, prefix and four numbers).

This doesn't take into account extension numbers. And in Washington, everybody has either an extension number or an unlisted phone.

My head is already so jammed with numbers that when I try to dial The Washington Post (National 4200) I usually get the Willard Hotel (National 4420) or Children's Hospital (Dupont 4220).

The White House (National 1414) keeps coming out Bassin's Restaurant (National 1441) or Embassy Dairy (Dupont 1441); and the Press Club (Republic 2500) sometimes answers brusquely, "War Assets" (Republic 7500).

It takes an Einstein to distinguish unerringly among the Atomic Energy Commission (Sterling 8000), the Army Engineers (Hobart 8000), and Station WINX (Republic 8000).

The Statler (Executive 1000) and Walter Reed Hospital (Georgia 1000) will also give one pause to think. And I never seem to be able to remember that the District Government can't be reached on District 6000. (It's National 6000).

In fact, there are so many of these examples available that I often suspect that the telephone company has set up a special department devoted exclusively to confusing me.

I accept the explanation that "more central office codes are now required to provide for expansion of service." But I suspect that there's a simpler solution possible.

It seems to me that a somewhat revised list of names for our exchanges would permit subscribers to dial the first three letters of the exchange name, instead of two letters plus a prefix.

The only drawback to my suggestion is that it would remove some of the spice from telephoning. There'd be much less likelihood of your saying, "Hello, is that you, Snookums?" and having a lugubrious voice answer: "No it's not—this is Chambers."

IT ALL DEPENDS

After checking through the Nats' batting averages, it occurs to me that in some cases a little inflation might not be a bad thing.

HOW'S THAT AGAIN?

Paul A. Muse of Manassas, Va., is still puzzling over this classified ad which appeared in his home town paper recently:

LOST—Several riders, between Nokesville, Manassas and Washington.

THE PEOPLE'S CHOICE

Judging from the mild August temperatures he's been sending us, you'd think the weatherman is also running for reelection this year.

PEACE PLAN

When local police arrested a night watchman on a charge of impersonating a policeman, they found him armed with a broken "Bang-O" cap pistol.

If we could talk the armies of the world into using the same type of equipment, the Security Council could knock off and go fishing.

RETURN ENGAGEMENT

President Truman is off on a nine-day cruise. This November, the Republicans hope to take him for another boat ride.

NEW YORK—Spencer Tracy, just back from Europe, is leaving for Hollywood to see his new boss at MGM, Dore Schary. Garson Kanin, one of Schary's oldest friends, asked Tracy: "Do you know Schary?" . . . "Yes," said Tracy. "In 1930 I appeared on Broadway in John Wexley's play, 'The Last Mile.' There was a scene in which a reporter came to my prison cell and asked me 3 questions. I didn't answer the questions, but told him 'Get the heck outta here' " "And was that reporter Dore Schary?" asked Kanin . . . "No" said Tracy. "The reporter had a friend, who just stood there and said nothing. That was Schary."

Charles Skouras, whose family controls a motion picture empire, received the Great Heart Award from the Variety Clubs at a dinner in Hollywood Monday night. He told of his arrival in St. Louis as an immigrant boy in 1909, with $150 in his pocket. "And when I left St. Louis in 1932, I owed six million dollars," said Skouras. "It proved that America is the land of opportunity—that if you live long enough, you can pay it off" . . . Skouras, who started as a busboy and rose to the No. 1 spot in the income tax listings, said that he still speaks broken English and broken Greek, "but hard work is the same in any language."

Ruth Gordon, the playwright-actress, studied the list of names of prominent sports figures and said that they were better than the names used by theater people. "Tiger Flowers and Yogi Berra are better for billing purposes than Barbara Standish or Jack Forsythe," said Miss Gordon. "Who knows how much further I'd have gone if, instead of 'Ruth Gordon,' my billing would have read 'Cookie Lavagetto in "Ethan Frome."' "

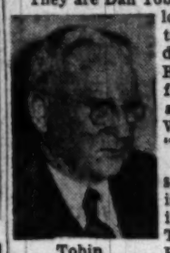
The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Teamsters Union Faces Fight

(While Drew Pearson is on a brief vacation, the Washington Merry-Go-Round is being written by his old partner, Robert S. Allen.)

The two titans of the mighty AFL Teamsters Union are squaring off for a roaring showdown.

They are Dan Tobin, 72-year-old



Tobin

long-time national president, and Dave Beck, tough, fancy-dressing and ambitious West Coast "czar."

Basis of the seething feud is Beck's chafing yen for Tobin's job. Beck thought he had it all set to become No. 1 teamster at last year's convention. He was wrong. But he displayed so much strength that Tobin decided it would be smart to throw his younger rival a sop.

Tobin had the teamster constitution amended empowering him to appoint an "executive vice president" from among the nine elected vice presidents. This new official was to be the direct assistant to the president. Beck got the job, although he is not senior vice president.

The appointment was accepted throughout the union as formal acknowledgment that Beck was Tobin's "heir apparent."

But Beck, apparently, wasn't satisfied. The burly Seattle laborite didn't want to wait until Tobin stepped out. Restlessly ambitious, Beck decided to build a labor empire of his own.

That is where he overreached himself. Eire-born Tobin has reared back and declared open war on Beck.

Union Grabber

Beck's empire-building has been bold—to put it mildly. It has included a bit of strike-busting against another union.

Since last April, 12,000 machinists have been on strike at the huge Boeing bomber plant in Seattle. The strikers are members of the International Machinists Association, an independent union long on good terms with the teamsters. During a teamsters' strike in Hartford, Conn., the machinists contributed thousands of dollars and did picket duty.

Notwithstanding this, in May, Beck sent his teamsters through the Boeing picket line and the following month began organizing Boeing mechanics. Beck claimed jurisdiction over half the plant's employes.

The outraged machinists yelled bloody murder. With Tobin's hearty approval, Harvey Brown, head of the machinists, wrote to every West Coast teamster local denouncing Beck and asking their support for the strike.

The Washington State Federation of Labor also took a husky slam at Beck. It adopted a resolution condemning strike-breaking and union-grabbing. The Everett (Wash.) AFL Metal Trades Council went further. Charging Beck with recruiting high-school students as Boeing strike-breakers, the council sent a resolution to Gov. Mon Wallgren demanding Beck be fired as a regent of the State University.

And last week, the AFL International Clerks went right into Beck's own bailiwick and slugged him.

For years, Beck has bossed five Seattle retail unions. They were part of his private labor barony, consisting of brewers, chicken cleaners, canners and various processors.

Again, with Tobin's blessing, Cecil Dunlap, a top official of the clerks, went to Seattle and took over four of Beck's retail locals. Dunlap impounded their funds and fired their business agents—all Beck appointees. None of the locals had ever elected officials; Beck always appointed them. Also, of the $2.50 dues the members paid, only 35 cents went to the international union.

Up to this point, Tobin had done all his countering indirectly through others. But in the latest issue of his official mouthpiece, the International Teamster, he squared off himself. Tobin served blunt notice that he is boss and intends to remain so. He also laid the ground for firing Beck as executive vice president.

"The executive vice president," Tobin declared, "is a new officer created to be helpful to the general president in every way possible. The executive vice president is appointed for no special length of time and can be removed at any time if his services and actions are not satisfactory to the general president. It would be entirely impracticable to have anyone as executive vice president who did not carry out the policies and work in harmony with the general president either now or in the future."

The next move is up to Beck. Insiders are predicting it will be in the political field.

Beck is an old friend of Gov. Earl Warren, GOP vice presidential candidate. Tobin is a lifelong Democrat; headed the Roosevelt Labor Campaign Committee in all the late President's campaigns. But Tobin has been cool to Truman.

It's still in the works what will happen between the two teamster titans.

Rank-Conscious

One phase of the "air rescue" demonstration at the opening ceremonies of New York's giant Idlewild Airport turned out to be more realistic than the spectators realized. An L-5 Cub plane, piloted by an NCO, actually crashed.

The Air Force surgeon who parachuted to the rescue administered genuine first aid to the unconscious pilot and rushed him to a hospital. He was still unconscious when he arrived.

The attendants had difficulty ascertaining the pilot's identity. Finally, an officer hurried in and told them, "He is Sergt. James A. Trehearne, jr., of Indiana."

At this, the pilot raised his head and murmured, "Not sergeant, sir, staff sergeant."

Then he became unconscious again.

I wish for joy

I love you more and more each day . . . Than I could ever hope to say . . . Because in every way you are . . . More beautiful than any star . . . You are more wonderful to me . . . Than every other memory . . . And you reflect the future bright . . . Beyond my darkest day and night . . . You are the happy song I sing . . . When winter looks around for spring . . . And rainbows decorate the sky . . . For you and me to wonder why . . . I love you, dear, with all my heart . . . And hope that we will never part . . . But whether no or whether yes . . . I wish you every happiness.

★ No. 20 IN A SERIES DEDICATED TO THE NATION'S CAPITAL, Washington ... ITS INSTITUTIONS AND ITS PEOPLE ★

THIS WEEK THE HECHT COMPANY SALUTES

The National Gallery of Art

and its workers who bring the art of the ages to the people of our country

● The National Gallery of Art . . . was given to our country by the late Andrew W. Mellon. Costing fifteen million dollars . . . it was completed in 1940 . . . and its collections of paintings, sculpture and the graphic arts are representative of the best in the artistic heritage of America and the world.

● The National Gallery of Art . . . is a bureau of the Smithsonian Institution . . . which is dedicated to the "increase and diffusion of knowledge among men." The National Gallery has entered upon a comprehensive educational program to make its famed collections of the greatest possible value to the public. Gallery tours for visitors are conducted twice daily . . . auditorium lectures are given periodically throughout the year . . . and a fifteen-minute talk on the "Picture of the Week" is presented every day.

● The National Gallery of Art . belongs to the entire country . . . not one city or State. It is supported by public appropriation, and is under the control of a board of trustees composed of the Chief Justice of the United States, chairman . . . the Secretary of State . . . the Secretary of the Treasury . . . the Secretary of the Smithsonian Institution . . . and five distinguished private citizens, representing the public.

● The National Gallery of Art . . . is one of the largest marble structures in the entire world . . . seven hundred and eighty-five feet long . . . having over half a million square feet of floor space. The exterior is of rose-white Tennessee marble, graded in shade, with the darkest hue at the base. In the bright sunlight the delicate rose tint of the marble serves to counteract glare . . . and in the rain the entire building seems to glow.

Within the marble walls of the magnificent building which houses the National Gallery of Art . . . are brought together some of the finest examples of European and American art. Unseen art is wasted art . . . and the Gallery provides our people, and visitors from the four corners of the world, with the opportunity of spending an hour . . . or a day . . . viewing the genius-inspired creations of the finest artists of the Old and New Worlds. Art knows no national boundaries . . . and the Flemish Rubens . . . Rembrandt, the brilliant Dutchman . . . Gainsborough, the famed English portraitist . . . Whistler, the immortal American . . . are recognized and honored solely on their merits as artists. Brought together in the National Gallery . . . with many others of like stature . . . they give to millions of visitors something of themselves which has been made immortal through the media of painting and sculpture. The Hecht Company is indeed happy to render this salute to the people of the National Gallery of Art . . . who not only enrich our cultural heritage, but work and plan so diligently to make it an active part of our lives.

All material contained herein has been secured from the National Gallery of Art and the U. S. Library of Congress.
